Tshombe Jolts Hopes Of Early Peace In Congo

Accord Must Be Ratified, Katanga Leader Declares

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Moise Tshombe promised Thursday to accept Congo central government authority over his rich Katanga Province. But on returning to Elisabethville he quickly dampened hopes of an early settlement of the bloody Katanga secession issue.

Tshombe issued a statement in his U.N.-held provincial capital declaring he had "not found anything" at the Kitona U.N. base where he had a 17-hour negotiating session with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula.

At Kitona, the stubborn Tshombe formally presented a signed declaration to U.N. Undersecretary Ralph Bunche and Adoula, implicitly withdrawing his secessionist claims.

In his statement at home he added: "All the time during my negotiations with Adoula he was running to the Americans for guidance whenever anything awkward arose.

"Ratification" Necessary

"The important thing is that the accord we have reached has to be ratified by my ministers and by the National (Katanga) Assembly, and that cannot be done for at least 10 days."

U.N. officials said, however, that as far as they are concerned, "There is no question of ratification. It—the agreement—is signed, sealed and delivered," they added.

Belgian observers in Elisabethville were pessimistic after hearing the Tshombe statement. They expressed belief that what he had agreed to would not be accepted by the Katanga government or by his followers.

The Belgians also believe that if the Kitona agreement is not ratified, the U.N. forces will interpret the rejection as a mandate for further action.

Nothing Final, Tshombe Says

On his predawn departure from the base and again at his arrival in Ndola, Northern Rhodesia, on his way back to his capital at Elisabethville, Tshombe claimed there was nothing final in his declaration—that it has yet to be ratified by his "national" assembly.

Tshombe's declaration acknowledged President Joseph Kasavubu as head of the entire Congolese Republic—including Katanga. It promised to place the Katanga gendarmerie under Kasavubu's authority and agreed to support the policy of the United Nations—including the expulsion of the foreign mercenaries who were Tshombe's strongest weapon against the central government and the United Nations.

But only events of the next weeks will tell how successfully Tshombe's declaration will be implemented.

Three times this year the separatist leader made apparent agreements with the central government—but they got lost in the thousand miles of wilds and jungle between Leopoldville and Elisabethville.

PEACE PLEA — Pope John XXIII records his Christmas message in the Vatican yesterday in which he called upon leaders of nations to work for peace and security of all men. Pope Calls On World Rulers To Shun Force

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII appealed to the leaders of the world in his annual Christmas peace message Thursday night to avoid a chain reaction of acts, decisions and resentments that could destroy mankind.

The 80-year-old Pontiff spoke in solemn tones from the library of his Vatican apartments. His peace appeal, delivered in Latin and televised in Italy, was translated into 30 languages, including Russian.

He did not mention either East or West by name but parts of his appeal were addressed to both as he said mutual relationships between nations still are far from the divine teaching and that even under peaceful words "there is often a spirit opposed to peace."

"We cannot believe that the terrific energy now under the control of man will be released for the world's destruction," he said. "For side by side with elements of fear and apprehension there are positive signs of goodwill that it is constructive and productive of good."

"We appeal to the rulers of the nations who today hold in their hands the fate of mankind," the Pontiff said. "You also are men, fragile and mortal. Upon you are the anxious eyes of your fellow men who are first your brothers before they are your subjects.

"With the authority which we have received from Jesus Christ, we say: Shun all thought of force. Think of the tragedy of initiating a chain reaction of acts, decisions, resentments which could erupt into rash and irreparable deeds.

"You have received great powers not to destroy but to build, not to divide but to unite, not to cause tears to be shed but to provide employment and security."

The Pope's voice often betrayed sadness as he recalled previous peace appeals unheeded because of "pride, greed, callousness, selfishness" Thursday night's was the Pope's fourth Christmas message of his reign.

Snow, Frosty Weather Mark Winter's Debut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Light snow fell Thursday from the northern Rockies to the Appalachians. Frosty weather spread down the East Coast toward northern Florida. It was bitter cold again in a pocket of the Northern Plains.

There were icy conditions from earlier sleet and freezing rain in several northern sections, and heavy snow accumulations still gave trouble in the Jackson Hole country of Wyoming and in some New England localities.

Winter's arrival, officially, was at 9:20 p.m. EST.

Major highways in Western Wyoming were clogged by 2 to 2½ feet of snow accumulated during several days of continual snowfall. The Wyoming Highway Department warned motorists of danger from snow slides which blocked some roads in canyons and passes Wednesday.

In southwestern Wyoming, slippery highway conditions caused hazards.

Treacherous road slicks remained in the Upper Mississippi Valley area, where five men were killed in one icy intersection crash near Spring Green, Wis., Thursday. Western Pennsylvania also had glazed highways and slippery driving.

Franklin County in western Massachusetts returned to near normal after a two-day storm which knocked out power circuits serving 20,000 homes and business firms and disrupted telephone service.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Nobel Peace Prize winner Father Dominique Pire announced Thursday he will start a million-dollar "Isle of Peace" farm in East Pakistan next February.

BERLIN (AP)—East Berliners are forbidden to set off fireworks on New Year's Eve within 100 yards of the Red wall dividing the city.

The East Berlin police chief also prohibited sending up rockets anywhere in East Berlin.

26 May Have Died In British Jet Crash

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A British Comet jet airliner exploded and crashed in flames shortly after take-off Thursday night in a light snow storm. Airline officials said eight or more of the 34 persons aboard survived.

Four residents of the United States were listed among the 27 passengers on the British European Airways Comet 4 flying from London to Tel Aviv, Israel, via Cyprus.

Among the five reported survivors rushed to a hospital were a member of the Cyprus National Assembly; Israel's military attache at the Israeli Embassy in Ankara, Col. Joseph Kidar, and a resident of Ankara.

The Americans were identified only as Arnold Holtzman, Ruth Goldman, Joseph Goldman and Doris Freudenberger.

The four-engine Comet, prototype of the world's first jet airliner, had stopped at Rome, Athens and Istanbul en route from London. Airport workers said that immediately after taking off here the big plane went into a steep climb, faltered, then broke up in a roaring explosion of flames.

Control tower operators said the craft, moving almost straight up, gained only about 1,000 feet of altitude before it blew up. Wreckage was scattered over a wide section of the airport area 12 miles from the heart of Ankara.

It was the third air disaster near Ankara within two years and the latest in a series of crashes that have plagued the Comets since they entered service in 1953.

Comets were grounded after two De Havilland Comet 1 jets mysteriously disintegrated in flight off Italy in 1954, taking a total of 63 lives. Metal fatigue was officially blamed.

W. Berlin, Red Police Clash

BERLIN (UPI) — East and West Berlin police dueled with tear gas grenades Thursday night after the Communists began throwing rocks and tear gas grenades at a candle-lit Christmas tree on the Western side of the dividing wall.

The West Berliners retaliated by hurling 12 tear gas grenades at the Vopos (Communist police) and the rock barrage ceased. The Christmas trees were erected along the wall by West Berliners as a symbol of solidarity with East Berliners.

The U.S. Army Thursday ordered 1,500 newly arrived American soldiers deployed throughout West Berlin Friday in a "readiness test" to familiarize them with the terrain if Berlin should become a battleground.

The East German news service ADN immediately called the troop deployment a "provocation against the peaceful solution of the West Berlin problem."

Ike, Mamie Begin Calif. Vacation

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Eisenhower started a winter vacation Thursday in a $175,000 golf course cottage on the sunny California desert.

The Eisenhowers, accompanied by their granddaughter, Mary Jane, who was celebrating her sixth birthday, traveled from their Gettysburg, Pa., home by train to nearby San Bernardino and motored south to the Eldorado Country Club.

Eisenhower told assembled newsmen and photographers the weather was poor on the train trip west and added as he basked in the sun, "I'm glad to be here—it's such nice weather."

Brazil Police Guard Circus Fire Setter

NITEROI, Brazil (UPI)—A Brazilian, who confessed to starting the circus fire in which more than 300 persons died, was held under heavy army guard Thursday to prevent a lynching.

Police said Adilson Marcelino Alves admitted touching a match to the circus big top last Sunday.

A tape recording of Alves' confession was played for newsmen Thursday. Alves, speaking calmly, answered in detail all questions put to him. He said he had set the fire because he was mistreated by circus employes.

'Santa' Plane Arrives

BERLIN (AP)—A U.S. military cargo plane flew into Berlin Thursday loaded with Christmas gifts from New Yorkers to children in this isolated city.

August Steuer, publisher of New York's German-language paper Staats-Zeitung und Herold, initiated the collection of gifts.

A total of 5,000 parcels had been collected.

Nike-Zeus Intercepts Missile In Test Firing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Nike-Zeus missile, designed to defend the United States against nuclear attack, has successfully intercepted a Nike-Hercules in its first test against a mock enemy rocket, the Army announced Thursday.

The successful firing was a big step toward the supreme test for the Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile. That will come early next year when the Nike-Zeus is pitted against an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile high over the Pacific.

The Zeus is the only defensive weapon now in sight against Russia's intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The Nike-Zeus was tested against the Nike-Hercules a week ago over the Army's proving grounds at White Sands, N.M. It was not asked to knock down the Nike-Hercules but the Army said it came "well within lethal radius" of the "enemy" missile.

The Nike-Hercules is a 3,000 mile-per-hour anti-aircraft missile with a range of about 75 miles. In contrast the Atlas to be used in the Pacific tests will be traveling—like any enemy ICBM — at a speed of 16,000-17,000 miles an hour when it re-enters the atmosphere.

The intercepting Nike-Zeus is a 45-foot long rocket that generates 450,000 pounds of thrust.

Atom Test Ban Talks In Christmas Recess

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union stressed again Thursday it will not accept a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests under international inspection and controls.

Soviet negotiator Semyon K Tsarapkin reiterated the position at the 349th session of the nuclear test ban talks. The three-year-old talks then went into their Christmas recess and will resume on Jan. 16.

USAF Captain Charged With Helping Spies

Accused Of Giving Defense Information To Foreign Agents

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A 43-year-old Air Force captain Thursday was charged with giving secret information to foreign agents while on leave in Germany last year.

The charges were brought against Capt. Joseph P. Kauffman, a native of Rutland, Vt., who recently was taken to Germany from Castle Air Force Base, Merced, Calif., for investigation.

The nationality of the foreign agents was not specified in the charges. Although the accusations were lodged formally against Kauffman, the Air Force said further investigations will determine whether a court-martial will be held.

An Air Force report on the investigation said Kauffman "is alleged wrongly to have communicated information relative to national defense which he had reason to believe would be to the advantage of a foreign country."

In related charges, he was accused of conspiring with foreign agents, with failing to communicate to his superiors information concerning approaches by foreign agents, and with falsely denying that he had ever been employed by a foreign government.

Kauffman was in Germany in October, 1960, on his way from duty at Sondrestrom Air Base in Greenland to his new assignment at Castle.

The Air Force said information he gave foreign agents concerned personnel and installations at which he had been stationed.

Joe Kennedy's Condition Still Listed As Grave

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Joseph P. Kennedy, 73, father of President Kennedy, remained in grave condition Thursday night from a stroke. There has been no real improvement since early Wednesday.

And a medical source at St. Mary's Hospital told newsmen, "He is not completely out of danger yet as far as life is concerned." But he added that chances of survival are much better than they were when Kennedy was rushed to the hospital Tuesday morning.

President Kennedy spent about 30 minutes with his father before flying to Bermuda for a two-day series of conferences with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan on grave international problems.

His father was awake when the President saw him, the doctor in charge of the case reported.

Two brief bulletins from the four-man team of physicians treating the stricken man emphasized that there has been no appreciable change in his condition since Wednesday.

Edward Kennedy, brother of the President, released shortly before 7 p.m. this announcement by the doctors:

"Mr. Kennedy's condition has not changed significantly. He is resting quietly."

In early afternoon, Dr. Marco Johannsen, who heads the physicians' group, released the following bulletin which he scribbled on a memo pad: "Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy's condition is unchanged as of 2 p.m. The patient is resting quietly."

Johannsen told reporters clustered in a hospital corridor that his patient's condition still was serious.

"There has been no material change since yesterday morning," he said in response to a question.

The doctors had found Kennedy somewhat improved when they examined him about 7 a.m. Wednesday. But the pickup obviously was fleeting and they were unable to report any additional progress since then.

That meant that the former ambassador to England, who suffered a stroke while golfing Tuesday morning, still is afflicted with a blood clot in the brain, still is partly paralyzed and still is unable to speak.

Jungle Search For Rockefeller Son Abandoned

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The search for Michael Rockefeller in the jungles of New Guinea is over, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller announced Thursday with "deep regret."

He made the announcement unemotionally and unhesitatingly, but the quiet tone of his voice and the way he turned his head away briefly at the conclusion indicated he had no further hope that his youngest son, 23, still could be alive.

A telegram from P. J. Platteel, governor general of Netherlands New Guinea, had advised Rockefeller:

"After having examined all reports I regretfully have to inform you my decision to end the unsuccessful search, as I feel that not anything more can be done."

Michael vanished Nov. 19 when he dived into crocodile-infested waters off the coast of New Guinea from a disabled native boat. He had been on an expedition in the wilds to seek primitive art to bring back to the United States.

The governor and Michael's twin, Mary Strawbridge, flew to New Guinea and joined the search by plane and boat.

U.S., British Chiefs Agree On W. Berlin

Limited Accords Reported On Atom, Congo Problems

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan opened a two-day conference with a five-hour talk Thursday on outstanding world problems. They were reported in complete agreement in their attitude toward the Soviet Union in the Berlin crisis.

The two Western leaders also were reported in accord on problems arising from the Congo and on questions of nuclear testing—but the area of agreement on these was described as limited.

Berlin, the Congo and nuclear weapons were top items in the opening session of the British-American meeting. White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the two leaders were in agreement on items they discussed affecting the Western position on Berlin.

Regarding nuclear testing, Salinger said the conversations had not extended to policies but to a report submitted by experts from each nation on the recent series of Soviet tests, which culminated in a 50-megaton-plus nuclear blast.

Congo Information Scanty

Salinger said that the Kennedy-Macmillan agreement on the Congo applied to scanty information received from there on the announced accord of Katanga President Moise Tshombe with Premier Cyrille Adoula of the Congo central government.

A communique issued after the meeting by British press officer John Russell, with Salinger standing by his side, said: "The President and the prime minister had some five hours talk today between 12:30 and 6:45 p.m.

"They ran through in a preliminary way some of the major problems that confront the world today, such as Berlin, the Congo and nuclear questions.

"On the Congo, the information to hand is still very scanty. We must hope that a satisfactory solution is in the course of achievement on the spot.

"On nuclear questions, the President and the prime minister heard a presentation by their experts on the subject of recent Soviet tests."

Kennedy Warmly Welcomed

The two Western leaders went into their talks after Kennedy arrived to a warm, simple reception in this British crown colony.

Kennedy had decided to go ahead with the scheduled Bermuda conference aimed at working out a diplomatic course for the year ahead, despite the sudden illness of his father that developed earlier in the week.

Kennedy paid a 30-minute call on his stricken father, Joseph P. Kennedy, at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach, Fla., before taking off for the two-day summit meeting on this British Atlantic island.

The President found that the condition of his father, who suffered a stroke Tuesday, had not changed overnight. But he is ready to hasten back to Florida if needed.

ROA Assails Defense Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Reserve Officers Association said Thursday that criticism of reservists called up in the Berlin crisis amounts to a "national libel" and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamra "has not seen fit" to set the record straight.

The organization issued what it called a "white paper" accusing McNamara of flouting congressional advice in calling out large numbers of unpaid reservists who already had long active duty service. The paper was sent to members of Congress.

It alleged that some Pentagon authorities, largely budget officers, wanted to wipe out reserve programs. It protested what it called the "harassment to which the Defense Department bookkeepers" subject reserve forces.

The association said McNamara had let misconceptions spread "unchallenged" with the result that reserves had been "unfairly" discredited. It added:

"The secretary of defense should be the first to present in proper perspective the nation's reservists, and to deal fairly with them, their families and their reputations. Since he has not seen fit to do so, we propose in this paper to provide this urgently needed information."

Lisbon Demonstrators Denounce U.S., Rip Flags

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A group of Portuguese embittered by the loss of Portugals Indian enclaves demonstrated against the United States and Britain in a 30-car, horn-tooting parade Thursday.

"Down with America," was among slogans pasted on the windshields of cars that sped through the business quarter of Lisbon at noon. "Down with the Anglo-Portuguese alliance."

Others denounced U.S. and British companies operating in Portugal.

Torn flags of the United States and Britain—partners of Portugal in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but frequently critical of Premier Antonio Salazar's government—trailed from car windows.

The demonstrators apparently considered that the Allies had failed Portugal in contributing nothing more than moral support against India's invasion.

A Soviet veto nullified American and British efforts to get a U.N. Security Council order for India to cease firing, withdraw troops and negotiate its claim to Goa and two other enclaves it had wanted ever since winning independence from Britain in 1947.

A Portuguese policeman on duty at the U.S. Embassy arrested a demonstrator who, armed with a knife, leaped from a car in what an official said was an apparent move to deface the embassy entrance.

A general reaction among Portuguese seemed to be bitterness at the Security Council's failure to intervene in the 48-hour war and uncertainty about what lies ahead.

Atom Test Ban Talks In Christmas Recess

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union stressed again Thursday it will not accept a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests under international inspection and controls.

Soviet negotiator Semyon K Tsarapkin reiterated the position at the 349th session of the nuclear test ban talks. The three-year-old talks then went into their Christmas recess and will resume on Jan. 16.

OTTAWA (UPI) — A $71 million sale of wheat and barley to Communist China was announced Thursday by the Canadian government, the largest completed between the two countries.

'Santa' Plane Arrives

August Steuer, publisher of New York's German-language paper Staats-Zeitung und Herold, initiated the collection of gifts.

A total of 5,000 parcels had been collected.

Nike-Zeus Intercepts Missile In Test Firing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Nike-Zeus missile, designed to defend the United States against nuclear attack, has successfully intercepted a Nike-Hercules in its first test against a mock enemy rocket, the Army announced Thursday.

The successful firing was a big step toward the supreme test for the Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile. That will come early next year when the Nike-Zeus is pitted against an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile high over the Pacific.

The Zeus is the only defensive weapon now in sight against Russia's intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The Nike-Zeus was tested against the Nike-Hercules a week ago over the Army's proving grounds at White Sands, N.M. It was not asked to knock down the Nike-Hercules but the Army said it came "well within lethal radius" of the "enemy" missile.

The Nike-Hercules is a 3,000 mile-per-hour anti-aircraft missile with a range of about 75 miles. In contrast the Atlas to be used in the Pacific tests will be traveling—like any enemy ICBM — at a speed of 16,000-17,000 miles an hour when it re-enters the atmosphere.

The intercepting Nike-Zeus is a 45-foot long rocket that generates 450,000 pounds of thrust.

USAF Captain Charged With Helping Spies

Accused Of Giving Defense Information To Foreign Agents

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A 43-year-old Air Force captain Thursday was charged with giving secret information to foreign agents while on leave in Germany last year.

The charges were brought against Capt. Joseph P. Kauffman, a native of Rutland, Vt., who recently was taken to Germany from Castle Air Force Base, Merced, Calif., for investigation.

The nationality of the foreign agents was not specified in the charges. Although the accusations were lodged formally against Kauffman, the Air Force said further investigations will determine whether a court-martial will be held.

An Air Force report on the investigation said Kauffman "is alleged wrongly to have communicated information relative to national defense which he had reason to believe would be to the advantage of a foreign country."

In related charges, he was accused of conspiring with foreign agents, with failing to communicate to his superiors information concerning approaches by foreign agents, and with falsely denying that he had ever been employed by a foreign government.

Kauffman was in Germany in October, 1960, on his way from duty at Sondrestrom Air Base in Greenland to his new assignment at Castle.

The Air Force said information he gave foreign agents concerned personnel and installations at which he had been stationed.

Jungle Search For Rockefeller Son Abandoned

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The search for Michael Rockefeller in the jungles of New Guinea is over, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller announced Thursday with "deep regret."

He made the announcement unemotionally and unhesitatingly, but the quiet tone of his voice and the way he turned his head away briefly at the conclusion indicated he had no further hope that his youngest son, 23, still could be alive.

A telegram from P. J. Platteel, governor general of Netherlands New Guinea, had advised Rockefeller:

"After having examined all reports I regretfully have to inform you my decision to end the unsuccessful search, as I feel that not anything more can be done."

Michael vanished Nov. 19 when he dived into crocodile-infested waters off the coast of New Guinea from a disabled native boat. He had been on an expedition in the wilds to seek primitive art to bring back to the United States.

The governor and Michael's twin, Mary Strawbridge, flew to New Guinea and joined the search by plane and boat.

Joe Kennedy's Condition Still Listed As Grave

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Joseph P. Kennedy, 73, father of President Kennedy, remained in grave condition Thursday night from a stroke. There has been no real improvement since early Wednesday.

And a medical source at St. Mary's Hospital told newsmen, "He is not completely out of danger yet as far as life is concerned." But he added that chances of survival are much better than they were when Kennedy was rushed to the hospital Tuesday morning.

President Kennedy spent about 30 minutes with his father before flying to Bermuda for a two-day series of conferences with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan on grave international problems.

His father was awake when the President saw him, the doctor in charge of the case reported.

Two brief bulletins from the four-man team of physicians treating the stricken man emphasized that there has been no appreciable change in his condition since Wednesday.

Edward Kennedy, brother of the President, released shortly before 7 p.m. this announcement by the doctors:

"Mr. Kennedy's condition has not changed significantly. He is resting quietly."

In early afternoon, Dr. Marco Johannsen, who heads the physicians' group, released the following bulletin which he scribbled on a memo pad: "Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy's condition is unchanged as of 2 p.m. The patient is resting quietly."

Johannsen told reporters clustered in a hospital corridor that his patient's condition still was serious.

"There has been no material change since yesterday morning," he said in response to a question.

The doctors had found Kennedy somewhat improved when they examined him about 7 a.m. Wednesday. But the pickup obviously was fleeting and they were unable to report any additional progress since then.

That meant that the former ambassador to England, who suffered a stroke while golfing Tuesday morning, still is afflicted with a blood clot in the brain, still is partly paralyzed and still is unable to speak.

U.S., British Chiefs Agree On W. Berlin

Limited Accords Reported On Atom, Congo Problems

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan opened a two-day conference with a five-hour talk Thursday on outstanding world problems. They were reported in complete agreement in their attitude toward the Soviet Union in the Berlin crisis.

The two Western leaders also were reported in accord on problems arising from the Congo and on questions of nuclear testing—but the area of agreement on these was described as limited.

Berlin, the Congo and nuclear weapons were top items in the opening session of the British-American meeting. White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the two leaders were in agreement on items they discussed affecting the Western position on Berlin.

Regarding nuclear testing, Salinger said the conversations had not extended to policies but to a report submitted by experts from each nation on the recent series of Soviet tests, which culminated in a 50-megaton-plus nuclear blast.

Congo Information Scanty

Salinger said that the Kennedy-Macmillan agreement on the Congo applied to scanty information received from there on the announced accord of Katanga President Moise Tshombe with Premier Cyrille Adoula of the Congo central government.

A communique issued after the meeting by British press officer John Russell, with Salinger standing by his side, said: "The President and the prime minister had some five hours talk today between 12:30 and 6:45 p.m.

"They ran through in a preliminary way some of the major problems that confront the world today, such as Berlin, the Congo and nuclear questions.

"On the Congo, the information to hand is still very scanty. We must hope that a satisfactory solution is in the course of achievement on the spot.

"On nuclear questions, the President and the prime minister heard a presentation by their experts on the subject of recent Soviet tests."

Kennedy Warmly Welcomed

The two Western leaders went into their talks after Kennedy arrived to a warm, simple reception in this British crown colony.

Kennedy had decided to go ahead with the scheduled Bermuda conference aimed at working out a diplomatic course for the year ahead, despite the sudden illness of his father that developed earlier in the week.

Kennedy paid a 30-minute call on his stricken father, Joseph P. Kennedy, at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach, Fla., before taking off for the two-day summit meeting on this British Atlantic island.

The President found that the condition of his father, who suffered a stroke Tuesday, had not changed overnight. But he is ready to hasten back to Florida if needed.

ROA Assails Defense Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Reserve Officers Association said Thursday that criticism of reservists called up in the Berlin crisis amounts to a "national libel" and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara "has not seen fit" to set the record straight.

The organization issued what it called a "white paper" accusing McNamara of flouting congressional advice in calling out large numbers of unpaid reservists who already had long active duty service. The paper was sent to members of Congress.

It alleged that some Pentagon authorities, largely budget officers, wanted to wipe out reserve programs. It protested what it called the "harassment to which the Defense Department bookkeepers" subject reserve forces.

The association said McNamara had let misconceptions spread "unchallenged" with the result that reserves had been "unfairly" discredited. It added:

"The secretary of defense should be the first to present in proper perspective the nation's reservists, and to deal fairly with them, their families and their reputations. Since he has not seen fit to do so, we propose in this paper to provide this urgently needed information."

Lisbon Demonstrators Denounce U.S., Rip Flags

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A group of Portuguese embittered by the loss of Portugals Indian enclaves demonstrated against the United States and Britain in a 30-car, horn-tooting parade Thursday.

"Down with America," was among slogans pasted on the windshields of cars that sped through the business quarter of Lisbon at noon. "Down with the Anglo-Portuguese alliance."

Others denounced U.S. and British companies operating in Portugal.

Torn flags of the United States and Britain—partners of Portugal in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but frequently critical of Premier Antonio Salazar's government—trailed from car windows.

The demonstrators apparently considered that the Allies had failed Portugal in contributing nothing more than moral support against India's invasion.

A Soviet veto nullified American and British efforts to get a U.N. Security Council order for India to cease firing, withdraw troops and negotiate its claim to Goa and two other enclaves it had wanted ever since winning independence from Britain in 1947.

A Portuguese policeman on duty at the U.S. Embassy arrested a demonstrator who, armed with a knife, leaped from a car in what an official said was an apparent move to deface the embassy entrance.

A general reaction among Portuguese seemed to be bitterness at the Security Council's failure to intervene in the 48-hour war and uncertainty about what lies ahead.

Stevenson Declares U.N. Winning Survival Battle

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson asserted Thursday the United Nations is winning a grim struggle for survival but he called for priority action to strengthen and improve the peace-keeping machinery of the world organization.

In an appraisal of recent developments, the chief U.S. delegate told a news conference that, "The numerous reports of the death of the United Nations were, as Mark Twain used to say, greatly exaggerated."

Stevenson made it clear that he was disturbed by the failure of the Security Council to vote a cease-fire to halt the Indian invasion of Portuguese Goa, but he expressed the belief the United Nations would take steps to check the use of force in future cases.

He said the 104-nation General Assembly, in its 16th session which recessed early Thursday, had been confronted by a series of life-and-death issues when it met last September and "on every one of them we have today . . . a result better than we then dared to predict."

The main problems, he said, included the task of replacing the late Dag Hammarskjold as secretary-general, the China representation issue, a financial crisis which threatened ruin to the United Nations, and the Congo problem.

He said the first three had been solved—at least for the moment—and, "The news from the Congo is a fresh reminder of the durability of the United Nations."

"It has weathered many a crisis, from Korea to the present," he said, "and its trials have toughened it."

Stevenson expressed general satisfaction with the work of the 14-week assembly session and declared that in its record "much will be found that was magnificent, and perhaps decisive for the future peace of the world."

Calling for an overhaul of the U.N. peace-keeping machinery, he said: "We need to make better and fuller use of our procedures for peaceful settlement. And we should consider how those means should be improved. We should ponder our recent experience and learn from it: for it would appear that institutions, like individuals, frequently learn the hard way."

U.S. Welcomes News Of Congo Unity Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States hailed as welcome news Thursday the Tshombe-Adoula pact to restore unity in the Congo.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said further meetings between Katanga President Moise Tshombe and Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula "are now in view to work out specific details of the reintegration."

"The United States government welcomes the news that agreement on reintegrating Katanga into the Congo has been reached in the talks at Kitona," White said in a statement.

"The goal is not a weaker Katanga, but a stronger Congo fully able to defeat subversion from within or attempts at outside domination," he added.

"This has been the objective of U.S. policy in support of the United Nations in the Congo from the beginning."

While some senators expressed skepticism, White told newsmen the United States "regards as firm the commitment on the part of Mr. Tshombe" to accept the central Congolese government's authority.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., who has called for a congressional investigation of U.S. Congo policy, said he hopes this is "a first step toward a just settlement" but he added: "Much will depend upon a mutual willingness to compromise and upon the good faith, or lack of it, displayed by the people on both sides, as well as by United Nations officials."

Two other members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sens. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, and Frank Lausche, D-Ohio, said the big question is whether Tshombe accepted the agreement willingly or was coerced.

Court Rejects Forger's Plea

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Court of Appeals affirmed Thursday Frederick County convictions of Vennie T. Gladden on three separate charges of forgery and false pretenses.

Gladden, who was sentenced to 18 months in the House of Correction on one charge and to consecutive sentences of one year each on the other two, said he did not understand what he was doing when he pleaded no contest to the charges at his circuit court trial.

He also contended he was denied the aid and advice of counsel and that the three and one-half years in the sentences constituted cruel and inhuman punishment for the offenses.

Dismissing his contentions as "devoid of merit", the high court said:

"The record discloses that the learned and experienced trial Judge (Patrick M. Schnauffer) carefully and fully explained to the appellant, who was no newcomer to the criminal courts, the nature and effect of his pleas.

"It discloses that he specifically requested that no counsel be appointed for him at his trial; and no degree of unfairness entered into his trial."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other foreign policy aides accompanied the President. Macmillan and Bermuda's governor, Sir Julian Gascoigne, welcomed them at Kindley Air Force Base.

The President, with the governor at his side, reviewed an honor guard and told Bermudans over a radio hookup: "I think it most appropriate at this particular time in the affairs of the world that the United States and Great Britain should once again meet and that we should have a chance to exchange our views and coordinate our policies."

Macmillan voiced sorrow over the illness of Kennedy's father. He said the job of the Bermuda meeting was "strengthening our friendship to preserve the peace of the world."

The airport ceremony lasted 10 minutes. Then the two chiefs drove 8½ miles by way of a coastal highway overlooking the blue Atlantic from the airport to Government House, Gascoigne's big villa.

They were welcomed by a group of school children and grownups at the entrance to Government House.

Fiscal Policy Critics Draw Tawes Blast

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Tawes replied angrily Thursday to criticism of his fiscal policies by members of the Baltimore City Council.

" . . . No amount of political haranguing is going to alter my position," Tawes said in a statement.

Councilman Peter G. Angelos blamed the governor for part of the 31-cent increase in the city's tax rate for 1962 after the council adopted a $302.5 million budget Wednesday.

"Instead of giving us the funds to which we have a just and rightful claim," said Angelos, "the governor chooses to hand us small change from his vest pocket.

"Instead of meeting this problem head-on, he chooses to dodge, side-step and beg the issue."

Angelos added this threat:

"And I think Mr. Tawes should be given fair notice that if he expects support from the city in his campaign for re-election next year, he ought to revise his attitude on the state's fiscal obligations to the city."

Tawes, who announced recently he would seek election to a second term, said the city's tax rate would have been "well in excess of $4 without the additional state aid which I have provided."

The record city budget for 1972 will be balanced with a $3.91 property tax.

Goose Quill Pen Industry Complains Of Ball Points

WASHINGTON (AP)—This nation's entire goose quill pen industry has complained bitterly to the Federal Trade Commission that it is unfairly threatened by quills wearing ball points.

The entire goose quill industry is Lewis Glaser, and his point is simple:

"Thomas Jefferson never heard of a ball point, and yet I heard a woman telling school children that this is the type of pen with which Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. It's an outrage."

Appropriately, Glaser lives in Jefferson's old home town, Charlottesville, Va. Each year he handcuts 50,000 quill pens. They are sold to the Supreme Court—which keeps a supply on hand possibly under the impression that Daniel Webster may walk in again and want one—and to gift shops in such historical shrines as Jefferson's Monticello and George Washington's Mount Vernon.

Glaser was a goose raiser, not quiller, until around eight years ago when he read an Associated Press story about an alarming shortage of goose quill pens.

Now foods, like women's hats, got out of style, though not so quickly.

This is the season, as every lover of Charles Dickens knows, when a fat goose should make the Christmas season complete. But it doesn't, at least in this country.

"Nobody wants a fat goose any more," Glaser says.

He saw the handwriting on the butcher's wall—and plunged into the quill-making business.

Glaser isn't surprised at the competition.

"Because of the considerable amount of favorable publicity my pens receive," he said in his complaint to the FTC, "it is inevitable that persons with a strong sense of urgency will try for a fast buck. Their cupidity exceeds their patriotism."

"Their racket has become a source of irritation and concern. Since they cannot duplicate my pen nibs they stick a ball point refill into the quill barrel and sell it as a goose quill pen!" he said.

No one knows what action, if any, the FTC will take but Glaser wants it to make the quill-with-ball-point people quit calling their pen a quill pen.

States' Income Hits New Peak

CHICAGO (AP)—New or higher taxes on everything swelled the total income of state governments to a record $19 billion in 1961.

That is a billion increase over 1960 collections, an analysis by the Commerce Clearing House, a private reporting firm on tax and business law, showed Thursday.

The upturn in state taxation was noted in two-thirds of the 48 states where legislative sessions were held this year. Virginia and Kentucky did not have sessions in 1961 and 16 other states passed no tax legislation considered significant by the reporting firm.

Major tax move included a two per cent sales tax adopted in Texas and a commuter's income tax approved in New Jersey.

India Speeds Goa Battle Repairs

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India rushed engineers and technicians to Goa Thursday to restore communications and repair battle damage. Another priority project was resumption of Goan iron exports which enriched the coffers of Portugal.

Goa was the most important of the three Portuguese enclaves overwhelmed by the Indian army earlier this week. Indian crews also were sent to Daman and Diu to restore facilities destroyed or damaged in the conquest which ended 451 years of Portuguese rule over the enclaves on the Arabian Sea.

Indian Ambassador R. S. Mani told a news conference in Rangoon, Burma, that India has not ruled out the use of military force in its border dispute with Communist China.)

Informed sources, meantime, reported that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev relayed his "warmest and sincerest" congratulations to Prime Minister Jawaharal Nehru for ending Portuguese rule over the enclaves.

Appropriately, Glaser lives in Jefferson's old home town, Charlottesville, Va. Each year he handcuts 50,000 quill pens. They are sold to the Supreme Court—which keeps a supply on hand possibly under the impression that Daniel Webster may walk in again and want one—and to gift shops in such historical shrines as Jefferson's Monticello and George Washington's Mount Vernon.

Glaser was a goose raiser, not quiller, until around eight years ago when he read an Associated Press story about an alarming shortage of goose quill pens.

Now foods, like women's hats, got out of style, though not so quickly.

This is the season, as every lover of Charles Dickens knows, when a fat goose should make the Christmas season complete. But it doesn't, at least in this country.

"Nobody wants a fat goose any more," Glaser says.

He saw the handwriting on the butcher's wall—and plunged into the quill-making business.

Glaser isn't surprised at the competition.

"Because of the considerable amount of favorable publicity my pens receive," he said in his complaint to the FTC, "it is inevitable that persons with a strong sense of urgency will try for a fast buck. Their cupidity exceeds their patriotism."

"Their racket has become a source of irritation and concern. Since they cannot duplicate my pen nibs they stick a ball point refill into the quill barrel and sell it as a goose quill pen!" he said.

No one knows what action, if any, the FTC will take but Glaser wants it to make the quill-with-ball-point people quit calling their pen a quill pen.

States' Income Hits New Peak

CHICAGO (AP)—New or higher taxes on everything swelled the total income of state governments to a record $19 billion in 1961.

That is a billion increase over 1960 collections, an analysis by the Commerce Clearing House, a private reporting firm on tax and business law, showed Thursday.

The upturn in state taxation was noted in two-thirds of the 48 states where legislative sessions were held this year. Virginia and Kentucky did not have sessions in 1961 and 16 other states passed no tax legislation considered significant by the reporting firm.

Major tax move included a two per cent sales tax adopted in Texas and a commuter's income tax approved in New Jersey.

India Speeds Goa Battle Repairs

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India rushed engineers and technicians to Goa Thursday to restore communications and repair battle damage. Another priority project was resumption of Goan iron exports which enriched the coffers of Portugal.

Goa was the most important of the three Portuguese enclaves overwhelmed by the Indian army earlier this week. Indian crews also were sent to Daman and Diu to restore facilities destroyed or damaged in the conquest which ended 451 years of Portuguese rule over the enclaves on the Arabian Sea.

Indian Ambassador R. S. Mani told a news conference in Rangoon, Burma, that India has not ruled out the use of military force in its border dispute with Communist China.)

Informed sources, meantime, reported that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev relayed his "warmest and sincerest" congratulations to Prime Minister Jawaharal Nehru for ending Portuguese rule over the enclaves.

Tawes Says He Still Supports Equality Bill

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Tawes said Thursday he still supports a public accommodations bill but thinks demonstrations against segregation are hurting chances for passage of the measure.

Until he gets an opinion on a proposed public accommodations bill from the Maryland attorney general, Tawes said, he will not discuss the subject further.

A spokesman for the Congress of Racial Equality, Gordon Carey said, however, that loss of support for the public accommodations bill does not change CORE's plans for demonstrations in Maryland.

"We see," he said, "no reason why morality must wait on legislation." Carey is field director of the congress.

He acknowledged that legislation in itself will not end segregation but said he favors passage of such a bill nevertheless.

Leon Sachs, director of the Baltimore Jewish Council, said Wednesday that attempts to negotiate with integrationist leaders had collapsed.

And a Baltimore County civic organization said it had withdrawn support of a public accommodations bill because of what it called the uncompromising attitude of integrationist leaders.

School Religion Issue Revived

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Court of Appeals decided Thursday that it wants to hear arguments again in a case brought by the mother of a ninth grade school boy to protest the daily religious service required in Baltimore City public schools.

Chief Judge Frederick W. Brune issued an order calling for reargument of the case during the period Jan. 9-12. A definite date for the reargument was not set.

Judge Brune said that the reargument would be restricted to "the constitutional question involved" in the case.

Mrs. Madalyn E. Murray filed the suit in Baltimore City Superior Court on her behalf and on behalf of her son, William J. Murray, III. Mrs. Murray protested the daily religious service religious service required in the city schools. She said she and her son are atheists and are opposed to the conduct of religious training.

Turkey Marketing Order Plan Opposed

RANDALLSTOWN, Md. (AP) — The executive of the Maryland Farm Bureau, C. E. Wise Jr., said Thursday that a proposed national marketing order covering turkeys would be unworkable.

"No national marketing order has ever existed for a farm commodity and one wouldn't be workable because it could not recognize differences in production and marketing conditions," he said.

Wise said that "attempts to restrict supplies and force prices upward unrealistically place a premium on the use of competing products, cause uneconomic shifts on farms and encourage producers in foreign countries to take over our export markets."

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — Despite the lack of success during a three-week test run, Baltimore and Annapolis Railroad plans to extend commuter service from Annapolis to Baltimore.

President James M. Easter II said the trial run from Harundale Mall north nine miles to Baltimore was not a success. He said that if he can get a federal subsidy, however, he may extend service to Annapolis and also Friendship International Airport.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Purchase of the 90-year-old Ford's Theater for conversion into a garage has been announced by the Mecht Co.

The theater and six other parcels of downtown property will be used eventually as a garage, but a Hecht official declined to say when his firm would take possession.

CORDOVA, Md. (AP) — Fire took the life Thursday of Will E. Collins, 88-year-old occupant of a tenant farm house near this Talbot County community.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts of the National Football League have signed defensive halfback Joe Chesalo of The Citadel. He is 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 210. He has been in the Air Force for the past three years. Chesalo is 24.

BALTIMORE (AP) — An all-time record of 21,200,000 pieces of mail was handled by Baltimore postal workers Tuesday.

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — A thwarted thief shot a customer, beat a service station attendant on the head with a tire iron and then fled without getting any money.

The customer, Richard Coleman, 41, of Hyattsville, was shot in the chest and twice in the stomach. His condition Thursday at Washington Sanitarium Hospital was listed as serious.

The attendant, John Bragg, 50, also of Hyattsville, was treated at the hospital for head injuries.

Police said Bragg had turned over money to the bandit when Coleman attacked the thief. Coleman was shot and Bragg smashed on the head during the fight which followed.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. (AP) — Members of the Harford County Medical Society have elected Dr. George T. Stansbury, 39-year-old Negro, as president.

Dr. Stansbury is a graduate of Morgan State College and the Howard University School of Medicine.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Officials of the Union Trust Co. of Maryland announced plans Thursday for a $900,000 construction program in the heart of Baltimore.

The key to the building program, the bank said, will be a four-story building at 7 St. Paul St., where the present office building will be demolished. Officials said they hoped to have the building completed by late 1962.

Coal Production Shows Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Coal Association estimated Thursday bituminous production for the week ended Dec. 16 as about 8,540,000 tons against 7,591,000 tons for the corresponding period last year.

Production for the week ended Dec. 9 was 8,515,000 tons.

No Wonder Car Hot

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore man drove into a service station Thursday to see why his car was overheating.

Elementary, said the attendant — no radiator.

Maryland's Traffic Toll Reaches 438

SALISBURY (AP)—Maryland's traffic death toll stood at 438 for the year Thursday after the death of Robert W. Wimbrow, 23, Selbyville, Del.

State Police said Wimbrow died at Peninsula General Hospital after his car left Peerless Road near Showell and struck a concrete driveway marker.

Officers said the marker smashed through the windshield and hit Wimbrow. His wife, Peggy Jean, was treated for shock and then was released.

The fatality count for the comparable period of 1960 was 496.

Springfield Reaccredited

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — One of two Maryland mental hospitals which lost their accreditation three years ago has regained good standing.

Gov. Tawes announced Thursday that the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals has restored recognition to Springfield State Hospital in Sykesville. The commission action came after an evaluation of the results of a survey at the institution Nov. 14-16.

The commission's report cited Springfield for a marked improvement in patient care and staff and physical facilities, the governor said.

Springfield and Spring Grove State Hospital fell short of commission standards in 1958 and both lost their accreditations. Spring Grove has not yet regained its former status.

The state's two other mental hospitals, Crownsville and Eastern Shore, have not been accredited.

The governor called the commission's action "a splendid achievement" for hospital officials and Dr. Isadore Tuerk, state commissioner of mental hygiene. The governor also noted that the commission commended Dr. Ralph H. Meng, administrator of the hospital, "for maintaining standards deserving of accreditation and for your constant effort to improve the quality of patient care."

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I was fascinated by the letter from the father whose 11-year-old flat-chested daughter appeared at the breakfast table wearing a brassiere. He said the girl didn't need a bra any more than he did and he so informed his wife by telephone the moment he reached his office.

His wife agreed that Flora did not need a bra but she begged for one because most of her friends wore one and she felt left out.

You agreed with the father that this was utter foolishness. Please look at the enclosed ad which I clipped from a leading woman's magazine. The child in this ad can't be more than 9 years old. The ad says the child's mother should buy her a bra for "emotional reassurance."

Of all the poppycock dished out by hucksters this is the worst. Comment, please.—E. I. F.

DEAR E. I. F.: Thanks for your letter. It is excellent. And thanks for sending the ad. It is nauseating.

A mother who would put a brassiere on a 9-year-old in order to give her "emotional assurance" is in pretty bad shape herself.

The way to give children emotional assurance is to love them, spend time with them, listen to them and give them a feeling of personal worth. The notion that emotional reassurance can be had in A, B and C cups is absurd.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The holiday season is here again. Our daughter and her three children plus our daughter-in-law and her three will be visiting us at the same time.

How can I get it across to both mothers that I will not tolerate any more brutality from their 7-year-olds? Ever since these two hellions were able to walk they have been wild and destructive. They used to nearly kill each other. Now the two of them gang up against the younger children and I can't talke the constant fighting.

Every time we sit down to a meal there is kicking, screaming and biting. This one won't sit next to that one and food is thrown and spilled on the table and the carpeting. I've talked to both mothers and they say such behavior is natural for 7-year-olds.

I've had to go away immediately after Christmas and rest up for three weeks to recover from the holidays. Any suggestions?

—S. O. S.

DEAR S. O. S.: Yes. Go away for three weeks—beginning Dec. 15.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I graduated from high school at 18, I made honor grades and thought my academic record would help me get a good job. Every place I went they said "Sorry, we need someone with experience."

I enrolled in a business school and graduated with high marks. I've been hunting for an office job for 18 months. All I hear is "We need someone with experience."

How can a person fresh out of school get experience when no one will give him a chance? Please tell me what to do, Ann. I'm beginning to think this is a cruel, cruel world.

DEAR UNEMPLOYED: Inexperienced people (especially office help) are hired every day on the strength of recommendations from business schools.

Perhaps your appearance, your personality or your general attitude needs working on. Discuss this problem with your business school teachers — and good luck to you.

An AP News Analysis
By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Waves of criticism wash against the United Nations in the wake of its armed action to bring Katanga under control but one fact stands out: The move has the overwhelming support of most of the 104 nations in the organization.

Supporters include the 50-nation Asian-African bloc, many of them small nations but ranging up to India.

Britain, France, Belgium and other nations with a financial or political stake in Katanga's future have protested over various aspects of the bold initiative that the U.N. secretariat under U Thant has taken in the last two weeks.

Thant's actions also have aroused some members of Congress and some American civic organizations, but the Kennedy administration has backed the U.N. operation down the line — as President Dwight D. Eisenhower did from the day the Congo crisis erupted 17 months ago.

The U.S. support of both Thant and the late Dag Hammarskjold in dealing with the Congo has placed it at odds with its Western allies more than once.

Diplomats note, however, that none of the dissenters called a Security Council meeting to halt the U.N. action.

"They know such a move wouldn't get off the ground at this time," said one Asian diplomat.

The Soviet Union broke with Hammarskjold over his interpretation of the U.N. objectives in the Congo. It has thrown its support behind Thant's move on Elisabethville and demanded liquidation of Katanga's President Moise Tshombe's regime.

The Soviet Union broke with Hammarskjold over his interpretation of the U.N. objectives in the Congo. It has thrown its support behind Thant's move on Elisabethville and demanded liquidation of Katanga's President Moise Tshombe's regime.

Britain has its Rhodesian Federation on Katanga's border, Belgium has Ruanda-Urundi, Portugal the strife-torn colony of Angola. All this raises doubts whether these nations want to see a strong, united Congo at this time. They obviously fear that the submission of Katanga might set a precedent for the United Nations to step into other colonial areas.

Dr. Conor Cruise O'Brien, who recently quit as U.N. chief in Katanga, asserted the British and French and other colonial powers had obstructed his efforts to get the foreign mercenaries out of Katanga and fortified Tshombe's determination to resist.

The Katanga crisis has raised questions as to just what the U.N. aim is in the Congo and how far its powers extend.

Retail Trade During 1961 Marked By Continued Shift In Marketing Methods

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although retail trade improved sharply in November, 1961 was a year of shrinking profits for many merchants.

It also was marked by a continued shift to marketing methods designed to pre-sell merchandise or make it sell itself once it was on the shelves and display racks.

Government figures put retail sales in November at an annual rate of $19.3 billion, passing the previous peak rate of $19.0 billion.

But for the first nine months of the year, retail trade in general was down 1.9 per cent, although sales of chain stores were up 3 per cent. The big mail order houses with their attached chain outlets had a sales gain of about 4.9 per cent through August.

But only Sears, Roebuck & Co. had a substantial profit gain.

Discount stores were estimated to have run their volume up more than $1 billion to $4 billion for the year, while department stores apparently suffered some loss from the $14 billion level of 1960.

The need to build big new branch stores in the mushrooming suburbs continued to sharpen the cost squeeze. So did the ned to renovate downtown stores. And the installation of automated equipment for accounting and warehousing has only started to offset the cost spiral that still is cutting earnings and profit margins in retail trade.

Prospects for the new year were better. There were some signs of a less rapid rate of change in retailing—which has experienced its most drastic revolution in the country's history in the past dozen years. There was reason to believe that 1962 retail demand will at least equal the expected 4.4 per cent gain in disposable personal income.

The food and drug chains did better than the all-retail average or the all-chain average in increasing their volume. Chains remained a minor factor, though, in the total retail drug business.

And in food, the so-called "voluntary chains" of individually-owned stores or co-ops increased their share of the total business at the expense of both the big national integrated chains and the old style independent grocer.

Big grocery chains, Grand Union, Food Fair and others, began to break into the growing discount department store field. So did the variety store chains, the former five and tens. F. W. Woolworth Co., announced in midsummer it would open more than a score of large discount houses, mainly in shopping centers.

The building of large supermarkets continued, but slowed down somewhat.

The big slump was in retail purchases of durable goods. Sales of these were down about 7.4 per cent for the first three-quarters.

Administration Concentrates On Executive Action In Pushing For Civil Rights Progress

EDITOR'S NOTE: John F. Kennedy's campaign promises on civil rights are credited at least in part for his slender presidential election victory over Richard M. Nixon. In the following dispatch, UPI reporter Vincent J. Burke outlines the moves Kennedy has made toward fulfilling those commitments.

By VINCENT J. BURKE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Kennedy administration so far has concentrated on administrative action, rather than new legislative proposals, to push for progress in the civil rights field.

Various executive-branch agencies, under President Kennedy's orders, are moving on a broad front to assure the rights of the nation's Negro minority.

Specifically, the administration has:

—Set up a unified new program aimed at wiping out racial discrimination in industrial hiring.

—Set an example in hiring by appointing Negroes to key posts in the executive and judicial branches.

—Laid down new rules against segregation in travel accommodations.

—Stepped up the Justice Department drive, initiated by the Eisenhower administration, to remove racial barriers to voting in some Southern states.

Other moves are under consideration — among them an executive order banning discrimination in housing. Kennedy said recently there would be a housing order, but did not say when.

The President did not ask the last session of congress for any civil rights legislation, although there was considerable pressure on him to do so. He is not expected to make any legislative proposals next year, either.

Both political parties, fully aware that the country's 19 million Negroes comprise 10 per cent of the population, have been vying for the Negro vote in recent years. The competition is heightened by the fact that almost half the Negroes live in the north, many in big industrial areas which have the most electoral votes.

Kennedy could have made a hit with the Negro community this year by pressing for rights legislation. But he did not want to risk alienation of Southern members of Congress whose votes were needed to help enact his economic and welfare programs.

The decisions on what to do were reached at a White House conference in February, a few weeks after Kennedy's inauguration. The leadership conference on civil rights, consisting of spokesmen for organized labor, church and other groups, outlined what they wanted. They were told what they were likely to get.

Here, in more detail, is what they have gotten so far:

Industrial Jobs

In an early action, Kennedy combined two executive agencies into one body assigned to eliminate discrimination in hiring — both by the government and by private industry holding government contracts. He appointed Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to head it.

Then the President issued an executive order under which, for the first time, thousands of government contractors must report on their compliance with no-discrimination rules which have been in effect nearly two decades.

There is a voluntary phase, too. The 50 corporations holding the most government contracts were asked for voluntary agreements that they would be fair in recruiting, training, hiring and promoting Negro workers. About half already have complied.

Voting

The fight against alleged denial of Negro voting rights has centered largely in the courts. To date the administration has filed suits involving 12 counties, acting in part on groundwork laid by the preceding administration.

Armed with a stronger voting law passed 18 months ago, Justice Department investigators are taking a very close look at voter qualification practices of certain areas of the south. More suits probably will result.

Travel

At the behest of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, the Interstate Commerce Commission put in effect Nov. 1 a new set of regulations designed to assure Negroes equal treatment on buses and in bus terminals.

Persuasiveness has worked well here so far. Virtually all the 18 Dixie railroads have complied.

Schools

Here again, persuasion has been the keynote. On four separate occasions, the President has made public appeals for compliance with the Supreme Court's edict that public schools desegregated.

Government Posts

Rank-and-file Negro voters have been most impressed by the appointment of members of their race to key government positions.

Notable here was the choice of Robert C. Weaver as housing administrator, and the fact that he is in line for even higher status if Congress approves Kennedy's proposal that the housing agency be given cabinet status.

Another popular move was the appointment of Thurgood Marshall to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Marshall led the Supreme Court fight for school desegregation while with the National Association For The Advancement of Colored People.

NEW YORK (AP) — Investors' efforts to get the best tax break possible on their 1961 transactions are making themselves felt on the stock market as the year nears an end.

Tax-selling is being held partly responsible for throwing the market into a decline after a good advance.

Friday is the last day to take profits, except for cash sales, to go into the 1961 income tax year.

Beginning next Tuesday, sales made at a profit on a regular basis (four days between the sale and delivery of the money) go on 1962 income, postpoining the tax for a year.

Eldon A. Grimm of Walston & Co. says that many high-flying stocks, which have scored tremendous advances this year, may continue to encounter profit-taking for 1961 and also for 1962.

L. O. Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co. reports many investors have told him they are anxious to take profits in certain stocks but they want the profits to go into the 1962 tax year, not 1961.

"If these investors act the way they talk," he says, "we would expect more profit-taking next week and during January."

Competitive Airline Service Probe Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday ordered an investigation of competitive trunk airline service between the northeast and a number of southern cities.

The northeastern cities are New York, Newark, N. J., Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

Those in the South are Memphis, Huntsville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Knoxville, Asheville, Birmingham, Mobile and New Orleans.

The new investigation stems from a June 1960 application of Capital Airlines for permission to discontinue service at Raleigh-Durham, Greensboro-High Point, Winston-Salem and Charlotte, N. C., and Newport News-Hampton-Warwick, Va.

Later, Capital merged into United Air Lines and asked that its applications be withdrawn because United wished to continue serving the cities involved.

Administration Concentrates On Executive Action In Pushing For Civil Rights Progress

EDITOR'S NOTE: John F. Kennedy's campaign promises on civil rights are credited at least in part for his slender presidential election victory over Richard M. Nixon. In the following dispatch, UPI reporter Vincent J. Burke outlines the moves Kennedy has made toward fulfilling those commitments.

Eckhart Man Is Charged In Fatal Auto Accident

Charges of manslaughter by motor vehicle and reckless driving have been placed against an Eckhart man as a result of the death of a passenger in his auto following an accident December 10.

Warrants were obtained against Robert Samuel Bowser, 25, this week in Oakland by Tfc. Joseph V. Stakem and Tfc. Donald Wade and Garrett County State's W. Dwight Stover.

Bowser was driving the auto on the New Germany Road at 9 p. m. Sunday, December 10, when it crashed.

The only person injured was Bernard DeSales Byrnes, 39, Eckhart. He suffered severe head and facial injuries and he died the following day in Miners Hospital, Frostburg.

State Police reconstructed the accident by stating that Bowser was enroute to Route 40 on the New Germany Road which was wet from a light snowfall.

While rounding a slight curve, he apparently lost control, went off on the east shoulder which was snow covered, and continued 200 feet until crashing into a tree.

Bowser posted $500 cash bond for his appearance for trial in Garrett County.

State Police said the hearing may be held either in Circuit Court or Trial Magistrates Court in that county, but no action is contemplated until after the first of the year.

It is estimated that there are ten million victims of leprosy in the world.

Police Issue Warning About Light Thefts

Reports of thefts of lights used in Christmas decorations have come from South End and West Side and the Police Department warned today that vandals will be prosecuted.

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Police Chief B. Frank Gaffney said the thefts occurred in the area of Jane Frazier Village and other sections of South End and on Beall Street on the West Side.

Considerable time and effort has been necessary to install the decorations, Chief Gaffney said, and police will prosecute those responsible for damaging them.

Greatest width of the Pacific Ocean is about 11,000 miles, near the Equator, between Panama and the eastern part of the China Sea.

Dump Permits Now Available

Permits for the use of the city's garbage dump during 1962 are available at the Street Department office in City Hall.

Under a city ordinance, a resident who uses the dump on a regular basis must pay $1 a year for a permit. An in-city commercial hauler also must pay $1 a year while a commercial hauler from outside the city must pay $10 per customer per year. The out-of-city hauler is also required to furnish a list of customers to the city.

A resident of Cumberland who at one or two times during the year may wish to take refuse to the dump off Oldtown Road, can do so without charge.

This dumping must be done between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. Monday through Friday or from 9 a. m. to noon on Saturday. The resident will contact the attendant on duty, will sign his name at the gate and be admitted. The dump is closed Sundays.

Commercial haulers are issued a key to the dump for an additional fee of 50 cents.

Thief Overlooks $160 In Truck

An over zealous thief yesterday overlooked the major part of a possible haul when he burgled a truck parked by the City Hall on Bedford Street.

But Officer Frank Bohn who investigated, said the intruder missed $160 in cash in the glove compartment and a .22-.410 calibre rifle.

Casper told police that the truck was unlocked when the burglary took place at 1:30 a.m.

Police Issue Warning About Light Thefts

Reports of thefts of lights used in Christmas decorations have come from South End and West Side and the Police Department warned today that vandals will be prosecuted.

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Police Chief B. Frank Gaffney said the thefts occurred in the area of Jane Frazier Village and other sections of South End and on Beall Street on the West Side.

Considerable time and effort has been necessary to install the decorations, Chief Gaffney said, and police will prosecute those responsible for damaging them.

Greatest width of the Pacific Ocean is about 11,000 miles, near the Equator, between Panama and the eastern part of the China Sea.

Dump Permits Now Available

Permits for the use of the city's garbage dump during 1962 are available at the Street Department office in City Hall.

Under a city ordinance, a resident who uses the dump on a regular basis must pay $1 a year for a permit. An in-city commercial hauler also must pay $1 a year while a commercial hauler from outside the city must pay $10 per customer per year. The out-of-city hauler is also required to furnish a list of customers to the city.

A resident of Cumberland who at one or two times during the year may wish to take refuse to the dump off Oldtown Road, can do so without charge.

This dumping must be done between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. Monday through Friday or from 9 a. m. to noon on Saturday. The resident will contact the attendant on duty, will sign his name at the gate and be admitted. The dump is closed Sundays.

Commercial haulers are issued a key to the dump for an additional fee of 50 cents.

Thief Overlooks $160 In Truck

An over zealous thief yesterday overlooked the major part of a possible haul when he burgled a truck parked by the City Hall on Bedford Street.

But Officer Frank Bohn who investigated, said the intruder missed $160 in cash in the glove compartment and a .22-.410 calibre rifle.

Casper told police that the truck was unlocked when the burglary took place at 1:30 a.m.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	4♠	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥

Declarer countered a skillful defense with a clever coup that destroyed his opponent's lines of communication at the crucial moment in today's hand.

The bidding was reasonable and, against the four spade contract, West opened the king of hearts and East signaled encouragingly with the ten. Apparently assured of an entry to partner's hand, West tried for a ruff by shifting to the seven of diamonds which was taken in dummy with the ace. Declarer, following his normal bent, would hasten to extract trumps, concede another heart, and claim his contract. But South, convinced that West's shift had been to a singleton, took measures to avoid the impending ruff.

If an attempt were made to drive out the ace of trumps at this point, West would win, put partner in with a heart, and obtain the needed ruff. An effort must, therefore, be made to disrupt the communications between the two hands before attacking trumps. Disposal of declarer's remaining heart was the only way to accomplish this purpose. Since it was logical to play the doubler for the ace of clubs, declarer led the king from dummy and upon it discarded his last heart. West was now saddled with the lead. Hoping against hope, he led a low heart, but declarer ruffed and then proceeded with the extracting of trumps, holding his losers to three tricks.

A diamond opening would have resulted in the defeat of the contract but, in the circumstances, I would not undertake to criticize West's choice of lead.

School Event Set Today

The seventh grade of Pennsylvania Avenue Junior High School will present a Christmas program in the school auditorium today at 1:25 p. m. Boys and girls from all seven home room groups will take part.

Mrs. Mary K. Wilson's home room will give the Christmas Scripture as a choral reading.

The seventh grade Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Beverly Andrews, will sing "Animals of Christmas," "Song of the Nativity," "The First Noel," and "Santa, Have You Had the Measles?"

Walter Crawford's home room group will present choral readings, "Christmas Cards," "Thoughts on Mrs. Santa," "The Message of the Bells," "Christmas Acrostic," and "Christmas Is Coming."

A play, "The Christmas Question" will be presented as a street broadcast. The play depicts a reporter who seeks the answer to "What is the best part of Christmas?" He is assisted by Santa Claus, and a large group of singers and dancers. A number of traditional Christmas Carols are included, and a square dance will be performed.

Parents and friends have been invited to attend.

It would take about 200 Formosas to equal the land area of Australia.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Weave Yuletide Magic

You'll be the talk of the tree-trimming party if you use this Powers Girl tip: Wear your dinner sheath and throw your white cardigan over it—but not before you have quick-sewn tremendous Christmas roses (real or fake) around the neckline. Haven't got a white sweater? Then use white roses on the bright red, green or blue one.

For the early chill of Christmas dawn when the children creep downstairs, fling your shawl over your robe with a casualness that belies the time you spent tying tiny, silver-tinsel bows all over it.

For caroling, calling and party going, you can have the merriest gloves—just for the price of an extra package of the shiny snow you sprinkle on the tree and a tube of thin, clear, liquid cement or milliner's paste, if you can get it. Seek out your oldest white cotton gloves and stuff them with plain white tissue. Smooth the smallest quantity possible of the cement on the backs of the gloves (not the palms). Just before the cement is dry, dust the snow liberally over the cement and let it dry thoroughly.

Don't miss the sure bet of using traditional evergreen on every costume. Try dipping holly berries in wax and wiring them to cover old earrings. Bunch balsam with candy-striped carnations to stick in your belt. Twist arbor vitae and scarlet ribbons around narrow bracelets and let the streamers trail.

For your biggest evening use one of these Powers Girl favorites: Find the biggest metallic cornucopia in town and sew lace in teeming ruffles around the opening. Carry it instead of a handbag. Paste a large, gold beauty mark on the back of your bare shoulder. Wear a sprig of gilded holly on your dancing slippers—and let the partners fall where they may!

Westinghouse Gets $11.5 Million Contract

NEW YORK (UPI) — Westinghouse Electric International Co. has been awarded a $11.5 million contract for a complete 66,000 kilowatt steam electric power station for Aruba, Netherlands West Indies.

The station will serve six new chemical plants to be built in the area, as well as Oranjestad, the principal city. The generating unit will also supply 220,000 pounds of low pressure steam per hour for future sea water conversion facilities.

SA To Distribute Repaired, New Toys

The Salvation Army's toy shop at 118 North Mechanic Street will be opened beginning at 9 a.m. today for the distribution of new and repaired toys to approved families.

Some 170 families have been approved by the Salvation Army for the receipt of some of these Christmas toys. After they have received their toys, other deserving families will be able to get toys. Envoy Paul Messenger estimates that between 70 and 80 other families will be able to get toys Friday.

These other families, not already approved, should report to the Salvation Army Citadel, which is across the street from the toy shop. The SA has been furnished a copy of the list of recipients of toys from Associated Charities so that duplication can be avoided.

William Self has been in charge of the repair of toys for the Salvation Army, according to Captain Fred Overton.

Rocking Chairs Popular Gifts This Yule Season

By JOYCE SCHULLER

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Kennedy's rocking chair's got to the rest of the country. Because of the President's preference for rockers, they're one of the most popular gifts for the home this Christmas.

The new rockers come in all sizes, shapes and styles from the old-fashioned, high-backed variety favored by the President to Edward Wormley's slim-lined rocking chaise (by Dunbar) with foam rubber padded stretch-out room for the legs.

Other suggested gifts of furniture are fireside chairs and hassocks. Newest of the fireside chairs is a pair of foam rubber cushioned tub chairs, affixed to a common walnut base in face-to-face position. The combination (by Valley) is called a tandem bench.

When buying smaller gifts for the home, the best rule is to stick to the items a hostess is sure to need.

Take those jumbo apothecary jars. There's always room for one more in the living room to hold leaves, candy, colored pebbles; in the kitchen for coffee or cookies; in the bathroom for multicolored cakes of soap or powder puffs.

Wooden trays are almost as versatile. Long, narrow rectangles or circles of exquisitely grained teak or walnut from Denmark, they make striking serving platters for fruit, canapes, shrimp alternate rows of cheese and apple slices and cocktails.

Wall mirrors are another good choice for the house that seemingly has everything. Engineer Backs Annexation For Shopping Area

The consulting engineer for a proposed shopping center on U.S. 220 near Naves Cross Roads has suggested that backers of the project ask for annexation to the City of Cumberland.

A letter from Lester H. Weinberg, the consulting engineer of Youngstown, Ohio, to William Cefaro and Associates, developers of the proposed site, was made public here by city officials.

A copy was sent to City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum and City Attorney William R. Carscaden said the Mayor and Council is willing to study the proposals and if representatives of the developers desire, willing to have a meeting for discussing the matter.

Annexation will also involve portions of other properties, it was learned, and is contiguous upon their approval.

Is his letter to Cefaro Associations, Weinberg points out that the Mayor and Council has taken the stand that unless the property is annexed to the city, no water or sewer service will be provided.

"Since the city sewer is in existence and a separate plant would take time to study, prepare and construct, the city system appears to be our most feasible outlet," the letter said.

It was pointed out that the city system is presently serving this area by an ejector station and asserts it is overloaded and located near the present city limits.

The following solution has been proposed and tentatively accepted, subject to approval by council.

1. The developers would construct a prefabricated pumping station at Naves Cross Roads at a cost of $25,000.

2. The city would extend, at its cost, the force main and gravity sewer to the pumping station from the present ejector station, approximately 1,100 feet, at an estimated cost of $12,000.

3. The property will apply for annexation, with service to be provided upon acceptance of the program by council, so that construction may proceed with annexation becoming effective December 31, 1963.

"This program will provide complete water supply and sewage facilities to be owned and operated by the City of Cumberland with the shopping center's obligation being fulfilled with the installation of the pumping station and the payment of normal water and sewer bills," the letter said, adding that "In my opinion, this will be the best solution for everyone involved."

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The United States and Iran Thursday signed a new economic agreement. Informed sources said Iran would receive a $20 million loan and a $15 million grant.

Fort Hill Will Conduct Citizenship Campaign

The Fort Hill High School Student Council has set aside the last three weeks of January for a Citizenship drive.

Preparations for the campaign have been underway for several weeks and will be one of the Student Council's major projects for the year. Purpose is to impress upon students the need for better citizenship and will attempt to make them citizenship-conscious.

"Dragnet For Litterbugs Week" will highlight the first of the drive. During this period, picking up litter or not throwing litter on school premises will be encouraged along with placing litter in proper containers and informing "litterbugs" to do the same.

The student body will be asked to cooperate in keeping the school appearance neat not only during the drive but throughout their school career. Members of the committee will walk to and from classes, carrying nets to drag in "litterbugs." Posters are also being prepared to emphasize the importance of anti-littering.

A pamphlet explaining the drive is being prepared by Cherii Berry, chairman, Suzy Crawford and Bonnie Harrison. It will be distributed to all students.

"Honesty" is the title chosen for the second week with certain situations to be emphasized, such as: Abuse of the corridor permit and checking to see if students have their own belongings. Posters have been obtained for this phase and will also be displayed with the litter posters. Slogans will be read over the public address system. Slogans were devised and set to music by the committee and mottoes written by each member of the committee.

Awards will be given two students exhibiting outstanding citizenship from each grade — 7th through 12th—and the drive will conclude with "Respecting School Rules Week."

Posters will again be employed and an assembly program to emphasize the drive's importance. Awards to the two outstanding citizens will be made at the assembly.

In addition to Misses Berry, Crawford and Harrison, other members of the committee are Joanne Rice, Janice White and Tom Lowery.

Rocking Chairs Popular Gifts This Yule Season

By JOYCE SCHULLER

CHICAGO (UPI) — President Kennedy's rocking chair's got to the rest of the country. Because of the President's preference for rockers, they're one of the most popular gifts for the home this Christmas.

The new rockers come in all sizes, shapes and styles from the old-fashioned, high-backed variety favored by the President to Edward Wormley's slim-lined rocking chaise (by Dunbar) with foam rubber padded stretch-out room for the legs.

Other suggested gifts of furniture are fireside chairs and hassocks. Newest of the fireside chairs is a pair of foam rubber cushioned tub chairs, affixed to a common walnut base in face-to-face position. The combination (by Valley) is called a tandem bench.

When buying smaller gifts for the home, the best rule is to stick to the items a hostess is sure to need.

Take those jumbo apothecary jars. There's always room for one more in the living room to hold leaves, candy, colored pebbles; in the kitchen for coffee or cookies; in the bathroom for multicolored cakes of soap or powder puffs.

Wooden trays are almost as versatile. Long, narrow rectangles or circles of exquisitely grained teak or walnut from Denmark, they make striking serving platters for fruit, canapes, shrimp alternate rows of cheese and apple slices and cocktails.

Wall mirrors are another good choice for the house that seemingly has everything. One new collection (by Carolina Mirror) comes in a wide varity of sizes and shapes, all banded in fingernail narrow aluminum in a choice of colors. They're sleek and smart in the living or dining room, bedroom, bath, hall, wherever an extra mirror is needed.

Eagles Plan Benefit Dance Tomorrow Night

Proceeds Marked For Heart Research

Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will hold a dance tomorrow night at the Eagles Club on North Mechanic Street for the benefit of the Max Baer Heart Fund, according to Alvin C. DeBouck, president.

Mr. DeBouck said Thomas Hopwood is chairman of the dance which will begin at 9 a.m. Music will be provided by Happy Laughner's Orchestra.

Tickets may be obtained from Mr. Hopwood or the door tomorrow night.

The Max Baer Heart Fund was started in 1960 in memory of the colorful former heavyweight boxing champion, who died of a heart attack in 1959.

Max Baer had been an active member of the Eagles and had appeared at many of the organization's conventions and gatherings. The fund is used to finance coronary research and provides grants-in-aid to recognized clinics, medical colleges and research centers.

The first grant of $25,000 was made in August 1961 to the Mayo Clinic for heart research. Further grants-in-aid will be made to other research establishments by the Eagle Fund.

Former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey is international chairman of the Max Baer Fund. He said every dollar contributed to the Eagle charity goes directly into research. All costs of the program are paid by the Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Richard Winer, chairman of the planning and zoning group, said the commission should look into the 701 program and suggested that Mr. Renaud get 701 forms and recommend a program for participation. Mr. Renaud believes he can have necessary details by the next meeting.

The commission last night voted to purchase a combination punch and binder machine for use in reports made up by the planning and zoning unit. It was felt other county units could use the machine.

The printing of at least 200 copies of a population report and related characteristics was also voted upon and approved.

Mr. Renaud reported that the estimated amount of construction work planned in November was $326,450.00 jail. His mother, Mary V. Downey, visited him in August 1960. She said he may be released eventually for good behavior. Chinese Red Cross officials who gave her this slim ray of hope would not tell her when he might be released but indicated it would not be for several years.

John T. Mason was the other commissioner present. Absent was James A. Perrin, vice chairman.

The only recent information on the American prisoners—their health, how they live, what they look like—comes from Mrs. Downey and Judge Walsh, and that information is 16 months old.

Downey shares his cell with two other prisoners, one Chinese and one Russian. Bishop Walsh has a Chinese cellmate. Neither has been allowed to say whether his cellmates are political prisoners or common criminals.

No Gay Packages

One Christmas, Fecteau received a large, hand-lettered Christmas card with 200 signatures of well-wishers at home.

No gay Christmas packages from home are permitted, however. The Red Cross delivers two packages totaling 22 pounds for each prisoner each month but even the packing, paper and string must conform to set standards. The packages ordinarily contain dehydrated soup, evaporated milk, soap, candy, sugar, butter, cheese, salmon, sausages, coffee, vitamins, cigarettes and canned fruit.

Ellis Tisdale Plans To Retire From River Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ellis S. Tisdale will retire Feb. 1 as executive director of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, it was announced Thursday.

Tisdale, 70, has held the post since 1955 when he retired as a sanitary engineer director for the U. S. Public Health Service.

A Massachusetts native, he went to work in 1916 for the West Virginia Department of Health as an engineer, rising in 1921 to the post of chief engineer. In that capacity he played an important part in the passage of anti-pollution legislation which resulted in establishment of the West Virginia Water Commission.

In 1936 he became chairman of the Ohio River Board of Engineers and joined the U. S. Public Health Service in 1938.

Lonaconing Native Named Executive

Paul K. Jones, a native of Lonaconing, who has been director of transportation for the city of Shaker Heights, Ohio, recently was named that city's first executive officer.

Mr. Jones, who was a graduate of old Central High School in Lonaconing, was named to the newly-created post in Shaker Heights by its Council. He will also continue in his present position as director of transportation.

Mr. Jones will administer the affairs of the city, exercise control and coordination of all departments and see that all laws and ordinances are enforced. His actions will be subject to the direction of the supervision of the mayor.

Mr. Jones is a cousin of Mrs. Jennie J. Grahame, administrative assistant of Allegany County Health Department.

Car Ventilation Vital, Police Chief Advises

Car windows should be kept clean—and slightly open—during winter, according to Police Chief B. F. Gaffney.

He said virtually all drivers recognize the importance of keeping car windows during winter but that not all go along with keeping one of the windows cracked.

Car windows, Chief Gaffney explained, tend to frost up during cold weather, especially if there are several passengers in the car. Good defrosting equipment is helpful and a slightly open window will help keep side and rear windows free of frost.

A little ventilation, even in coldest weather, is also good insurance against carbon monoxide poisoning, he said.

A tightly closed car, combined with a leaky exhaust system, he said, can be deadly, and even if the carbon monoxide concentration is not enough to kill, it can seriously reduce a driver's alertness and efficiency.

Another reason for keeping a window cracked, he said, is to help hearing.

Drivers depend most on their eyes, he said, but need all their senses for safety.

Sounds of traffic, approaching emergency vehicles or the whistle of an oncoming train can be muted to a dangerous point when windows are closed tightly.

It is better, even in the coldest weather, he said, to be cool and collected, instead of being drowsy and befuddled—or dead.

YMCA Plans Trip To Pittsburgh

Boys and girls belonging to Central YMCA will take a bus trip to Pittsburgh, Pa., next Tuesday, according to Benjamin F. Haines, "Y" program director.

The youngsters will see model trains at the Buhl Planetarium and then visit the H. J. Heinz Company factory. Mr. Haines urged all interested boys and girls to make reservations by calling the YMCA not later than Saturday.

Guard Rail Placed On Reynolds Street

A Street Department crew will complete today the installation of 160 feet of steel guard rail on Reynolds Street Extended.

Street Commissioner John J. Long said salvaged railroad rails are being used for the project started Thursday.

About 200 feet of guard rail was placed some time ago at the entrance to Constitution Park.

Miller Avenue Sewer Project Is Completed

The completion of work on the Miller Avenue sewer project was announced yesterday by Street Commissioner John J. Long.

Work began about 10 days ago on the project which included the installation of 370 feet of eight-inch sanitary sewer and two manholes.

It begins on Bedford Road and dead ends on Miller Avenue and was designed to provide sewage service to several homes served by septic tanks and at the same time develop the area for construction which is being planned.

Two of the homes have already abandoned septic tank installations and have tapped the new line according to Ray Valentine, street superintendent.

Eagles Plan Benefit Dance Tomorrow Night

Proceeds Marked For Heart Research

Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will hold a dance tomorrow night at the Eagles Club on North Mechanic Street for the benefit of the Max Baer Heart Fund, according to Alvin C. DeBouck, president.

Mr. DeBouck said Thomas Hopwood is chairman of the dance which will begin at 9 a.m. Music will be provided by Happy Laughner's Orchestra.

Tickets may be obtained from Mr. Hopwood or the door tomorrow night.

The Max Baer Heart Fund was started in 1960 in memory of the colorful former heavyweight boxing champion, who died of a heart attack in 1959.

Max Baer had been an active member of the Eagles and had appeared at many of the organization's conventions and gatherings. The fund is used to finance coronary research and provides grants-in-aid to recognized clinics, medical colleges and research centers.

The first grant of $25,000 was made in August 1961 to the Mayo Clinic for heart research. Further grants-in-aid will be made to other research establishments by the Eagle Fund.

Former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey is international chairman of the Max Baer Fund. He said every dollar contributed to the Eagle charity goes directly into research. All costs of the program are paid by the Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Richard Winer, chairman of the planning and zoning group, said the commission should look into the 701 program and suggested that Mr. Renaud get 701 forms and recommend a program for participation. Mr. Renaud believes he can have necessary details by the next meeting.

The commission last night voted to purchase a combination punch and binder machine for use in reports made up by the planning and zoning unit. It was felt other county units could use the machine.

The printing of at least 200 copies of a population report and related characteristics was also voted upon and approved.

Mr. Renaud reported that the estimated amount of construction work planned in November was $326,450.00

John T. Mason was the other commissioner present. Absent was James A. Perrin, vice chairman.

jail. His mother, Mary V. Downey, visited him in August 1960. She said he may be released eventually for good behavior. Chinese Red Cross officials who gave her this slim ray of hope would not tell her when he might be released but indicated it would not be for several years.

The only recent information on the American prisoners—their health, how they live, what they look like—comes from Mrs. Downey and Judge Walsh, and that information is 16 months old.

Downey shares his cell with two other prisoners, one Chinese and one Russian. Bishop Walsh has a Chinese cellmate. Neither has been allowed to say whether his cellmates are political prisoners or common criminals.

No Gay Packages

One Christmas, Fecteau received a large, hand-lettered Christmas card with 200 signatures of well-wishers at home.

No gay Christmas packages from home are permitted, however. The Red Cross delivers two packages totaling 22 pounds for each prisoner each month but even the packing, paper and string must conform to set standards. The packages ordinarily contain dehydrated soup, evaporated milk, soap, candy, sugar, butter, cheese, salmon, sausages, coffee, vitamins, cigarettes and canned fruit.

40 Will Attend Two-Day Meeting

About 40 employes of the Maryland Department of Forests and Parks, including representatives of Allegany and Garrett counties, are expected to attend a two-day meeting next month at Gambrill State Park headquarters about six miles north of Frederick.

W. A. C. Irwin, district forester, said yesterday the four district foresters from Cumberland, Laurel, Salisbury and Bel Air, forest and park superintendents and other supervisors are scheduled to attend the meeting January 11-12.

In charge of the meeting will be William A. Parr, superintendent of state parks in Maryland.

Administration, attendance records, public relations, tractor maintenance and future trends will be discussed. Workshops will be held on the training of part-time employes, said Mr. Irwin.

Ellis Tisdale Plans To Retire From River Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ellis S. Tisdale will retire Feb. 1 as executive director of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, it was announced Thursday.

Tisdale, 70, has held the post since 1955 when he retired as a sanitary engineer director for the U. S. Public Health Service.

A Massachusetts native, he went to work in 1916 for the West Virginia Department of Health as an engineer, rising in 1921 to the post of chief engineer. In that capacity he played an important part in the passage of anti-pollution legislation which resulted in establishment of the West Virginia Water Commission.

In 1936 he became chairman of the Ohio River Board of Engineers and joined the U. S. Public Health Service in 1938.

Lonaconing Native Named Executive

Paul K. Jones, a native of Lonaconing, who has been director of transportation for the city of Shaker Heights, Ohio, recently was named that city's first executive officer.

Mr. Jones, who was a graduate of old Central High School in Lonaconing, was named to the newly-created post in Shaker Heights by its Council. He will also continue in his present position as director of transportation.

Mr. Jones will administer the affairs of the city, exercise control and coordination of all departments and see that all laws and ordinances are enforced. His actions will be subject to the direction of the supervision of the mayor.

Mr. Jones is a cousin of Mrs. Jennie J. Grahame, administrative assistant of Allegany County Health Department.

Car Ventilation Vital, Police Chief Advises

Car windows should be kept clean—and slightly open—during winter, according to Police Chief B. F. Gaffney.

He said virtually all drivers recognize the importance of keeping car windows during winter but that not all go along with keeping one of the windows cracked.

Car windows, Chief Gaffney explained, tend to frost up during cold weather, especially if there are several passengers in the car. Good defrosting equipment is helpful and a slightly open window will help keep side and rear windows free of frost.

A little ventilation, even in coldest weather, is also good insurance against carbon monoxide poisoning, he said.

A tightly closed car, combined with a leaky exhaust system, he said, can be deadly, and even if the carbon monoxide concentration is not enough to kill, it can seriously reduce a driver's alertness and efficiency.

Another reason for keeping a window cracked, he said, is to help hearing.

Drivers depend most on their eyes, he said, but need all their senses for safety.

Sounds of traffic, approaching emergency vehicles or the whistle of an oncoming train can be muted to a dangerous point when windows are closed tightly.

It is better, even in the coldest weather, he said, to be cool and collected, instead of being drowsy and befuddled—or dead.

YMCA Plans Trip To Pittsburgh

Boys and girls belonging to Central YMCA will take a bus trip to Pittsburgh, Pa., next Tuesday, according to Benjamin F. Haines, "Y" program director.

The youngsters will see model trains at the Buhl Planetarium and then visit the H. J. Heinz Company factory. Mr. Haines urged all interested boys and girls to make reservations by calling the YMCA not later than Saturday.

Guard Rail Placed On Reynolds Street

A Street Department crew will complete today the installation of 160 feet of steel guard rail on Reynolds Street Extended.

Street Commissioner John J. Long said salvaged railroad rails are being used for the project started Thursday.

About 200 feet of guard rail was placed some time ago at the entrance to Constitution Park.

Miller Avenue Sewer Project Is Completed

The completion of work on the Miller Avenue sewer project was announced yesterday by Street Commissioner John J. Long.

Work began about 10 days ago on the project which included the installation of 370 feet of eight-inch sanitary sewer and two manholes.

It begins on Bedford Road and dead ends on Miller Avenue and was designed to provide sewage service to several homes served by septic tanks and at the same time develop the area for construction which is being planned.

Two of the homes have already abandoned septic tank installations and have tapped the new line according to Ray Valentine, street superintendent.

England's Density Dwarfs Our Problem

England, with an area similar to that of Alabama but a population equal to one-fourth the United States total, has a density problem which dwarfs the troubles many American cities have as a result of too many people in too small an area.

It is not surprising, therefore, that while the United States continues to sprawl around growing suburbias England is concentrating on vertical expansion. Buckinghamshire County has come up with the most comprehensive plan yet concocted to administer to all the needs of people within the smallest area of ground space.

A 15-story apartment building will replace 20 individual dwellings; a clinic, garage and school will be located in an excavation beneath the building; all shops will be concentrated in an adjoining eight-story edifice, with a church on the top floor. All utilities will be provided by a community power plant in the basement of the commercial building.

Instead of the present 350 acres, Buckinghamshire County of the future will be contained in 20 acres of living accommodations, with the remainder devoted to cultivation and parks. According to the architect, the popularity of vertical living "can't miss. The average resident can live completely within the 20 acres."

Aside from the fact it would be next to impossible to find one citizen of any community who fits the statistical average of the town, the natural tendency of man's progress through the centuries has been to broaden his sphere of knowledge and association, not to restrict himself to smaller and smaller surroundings.

Americans would have no taste for a lifetime restricted to 20 acres, with or without the added restrictions of an entire town on this same plot of ground. Is English aversion to civilized captivity less pronounced?

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Rightist Extremists

I received a most thoughtful letter from Robert G. Kelsey of Freehold, New Jersey, who is critical of an article I wrote. He says:

". . . the idea that, although there has been vast changes, both economic and social in this country since 1914, these changes were not necessarily in the best interests of the country, and certainly not in the best interest of the individual."

Those of us who are conservatives need not become revolutionists to achieve our ends. If we ignore reality, we may become irrational. Granted that many of the changes that were introduced by the New Deal are hateful, what effect would their rejection in 1961 have upon economic and social conditions in 1961?

Let us take as an example the expansion of labor unionism since 1936. The trend has been not only to increase collective bargaining but to reorganize the social relationships between management and labor, to divide wages into two parts, cash payment and social payment; the former controlled by agreements between management and the union, the latter determined by acts of Congress, decisions of various government agencies. Also, the trend has been to establish a single industrial union in a company rather than a large number of separate and independent unions.

In 1936 and 1937, I opposed this trend as did many conservatives, but in 1961, the consequences of attempting to drop this system and to substitute for it the open shop, conflicting unions, no government control would be dangerous. The practical question is whether it is possible to revert to pre-1936 conditions.

Merely to say that a conservative dislikes Roosevelt provides no guidance for conduct in 1961 when we are at war, when our dollar is shamefully inflated, when our bankers have ceased to think in economic terms beyond that of a teller.

We are still a free people, able, under the law, to express our opinions and to vote for what we believe to be true. But, if we assume that war does not change economic and social conditions, we do not grasp our situation.

Kelsey says:

"You spend only what you have. This statement is obvious. As I have read in your own column, Mr. Sokolsky, there is a limit to the deficiency any one or any nation can stand. Ignoring the limitation can bring bankruptcy."

Of course, there is a limit to what a nation can spend. In time of peace that limit is controlled by the law of supply and demand, by prudence, by our competence to maintain order under mass opposition to government conduct.

In time of war, none of this is true. Instead of the law of supply and demand, we are governed by victory or defeat. What we need to recognize is that we now have no effective allies and that we need to meet war conditions out of our own resources.

One of our principal dangers is that unemployment can bring on revolutionary conditions. Kelsey says:

". . . that you do not legislate charity. Charity is voluntary and legislation is not . . ."

If my correspondent means that social measures are revolutionary, he must, as a practical man, be prepared to shoot down and kill all the unemployed or the partially employed. If he is not ready to do that, as I am sure he is not, he must be ready either to find work for them or create economic conditions which do increase the number of jobs available. The law of supply and demand will not protect the worker from the failure to find jobs under the conditions which today face him.

These are the facts which we face as a result of a devastating depression, three wars, the Russian Revolution and the disorganization of the world economic system by the appearance of new nations and the collapse of ancient empires.

It is unfortunate that so many who are opposed to Marxism reject the essential fact that we are forced to take positive stands to meet Marxism; that we cannot just say that everything is all wrong but that we have to offer a constructive program. Certainly, to hold that charity cannot be legislated was a good phrase in the 1930's; in the 1960's we are forced to recognize that should we ever have 10,000,000 unemployed again, we shall be forced to do plenty of legislating to save ourselves from a social revolution.

India Espouses Doctrine 'Might Makes Right'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — India has turned the clock back several centuries to espouse the doctrine that might makes right. No longer is India "non-aligned." It now is aligned with the aggressors—the Soviet Union and Red China—in grabbing near-by territory and arguing that it is merely following "the tide of history." The theft of the Portuguese Province of Goa by India's military forces indeed has put a black mark on the pages of history.

What is to happen to Mr. Nehru's cause if Red China starts moving across the Tibetan border to invade India or uses his argument to justify a seizure of the adjacent territory of Hong Kong from Britain? What becomes of the validity of treaty rights and international law if at any moment these can be converted into "scraps of paper" just as Hitler did in the 1930's?

Plainly the quest for peace by the processes of reason has suffered a setback. It is all the more distressing because the new violator of human rights — Premier Nehru — has hitherto been their staunchest defender. He has been the world's chief exponent of nonviolence and of the Pacific settlement of disputes.

Worst of all is the hypocritical and transparently immoral behavior of the United Nations itself. How can respect for that organization be maintained when it tolerates acts that tear to shreds the solemn obligations of its charter?

The Security Council was stopped by the Soviet veto from dealing with India's action, but the General Assembly can still function and express itself. It now is said this would be futile because the Afro-Asian Bloc would vote down any resolution condemning India's aggression. Nevertheless, a record vote would go a long way toward defining the issue for the future. If the charter is to be formally repudiated, the sooner the world knows it the earlier a new organization will be formed to bring together the nations that sincerely believe in a rule of law.

A rereading of the United Nations Charter adopted in 1945 at San Francisco is pertinent today. Here are some extracts that place aggression outside the pale of civilized conduct:

"Purposes and principles . . . to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace. . . .

"All members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state. . . .

"All members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfill in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the prsent charter."

Adlai Stevenson, the U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., acting upon instructions from Washington, made some pointed comments during the debate at the Security Council meeting at which the Soviet veto was registered against any action by the council denouncing India's course. He said:

"Can anyone believe that huge India is acting in self-defense against this little territory? . . . The League of Natoins died, I remind you, when its members no longer resisted the use of aggressive force. . . .

"The failure of the Security Council to call for a cease-fire in these simple circumstances is a failure of the United Nations. The veto of the Soviet Union is consistent with its long role of obstruction. But I find the attitude of some other members of the council profoundly disturbing and ominous because we have witnessed an effort to rewrite the charter, to sanction the use of force in international relations when it suits one's own purposes. This approach can only lead to chaos and to the disintegration of the United Nations."

The foregoing remarks point up the weakness that has been revealed time and again in the U.N. — that nations do their voting on the basis of political self-interest rather than from the viewpoint of international justice.

What are the tragic consequences already? Indonesia is preparing militarily to move against Dutch-held West New Guinea, which is located on an island hundreds of miles away from the Indonesian seat of government. The sole claim of Indonesia is that it has a right to whatever the Netherlands owns in the Archipelago. Will the U.N. step in to avoid the use of force? Will it help the people of New Guinea to exercise their right of self-determination?

And suppose the Peiping government decides to go back a few centuries to the days when Genghis Khan claimed all of Asia, including India, and asserts now that Red China has inherited all the land once claimed by preceding regimes?

There are many places in the world where bloodshed could ensue if the doctrine that might makes right is to be employed to justify seizing areas now held by other governments, whether as colonies or as integral parts of the sovereign territory of the nation attacked.

Throughout Africa, the torches of more war have been lighted. A West African newspaper says: "The amazing thing was that Nehru was so patient. When independent African countries are strong enough to give the command to pack up and go, Angola, Mazambique and Portuguese Guinea will suffer the same fate as Goa."

Nuclear wars may perhaps be averted, but little wars that can grow into big wars seem destined to plague the world. Sooner or later the United Nations must be reorganized to include truly free nations which are willing to make sacrifices to establish a rule of law for the settlement of international disputes.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

TONGUE TWISTER: An assistant to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff has the prosaic name of Jones, but his given name is something else again — Boisfeuillet. Jones has carried this burden heavily through the years.

Therefore, he entered a House committee room where he was scheduled to testify with some trepidation.

Sure enough! — his turn to take the stand came and the chairman said after a moment's hesitation, "and now we'll hear from Mr. B. Jones."

Jones thought he had escaped the inevitable questions about his first name, but it was not to be. "Off the record," asked the chairman, "just how do you pronounce that first name of yours?"

Jones sighed wistfully and replied, "Bohfulay," adding hopefully, "my friends call me Bo." The chairman nodded understandingly and remarked, "We will now hear from Mr. Jones."

BIG PRIZE—Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and an understanding scientist, recently presented the Enrico Fermi Award to atomic scientist Hans Bethe. The award, by the AEC, is accompanied by a check for $50,000.

A reporter thought he'd kid Seaborg and asked him why he hadn't tried to get it for himself.

"For two reasons," replied Seaborg. "First, the obvious one and, second, because I won it last year."

Daring Children Face Many Hazards At Play

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Americans regard automobiles and other vehicles as the greatest menaces to their children's lives. But every city, town, and hamlet harbors other traps that parents ought to warn their offspring to avoid. Most boys are fascinated with junk heaps that offer treasures of broken glass, discarded tin cans, rusty nails, old clocks, and used machinery. A misstep in such debris usually means a cut or bruise and infections are not uncommon.

An abandoned shed is made for climbing, but weakened timbers collapse and occasionally we hear of fatal crushings in this way. There has been so much publicity about deaths from suffocation in discarded iceboxes anybody who fails to remove the door before throwing it out is potentially guilty of homicide.

Junked autos bring out mechanical tendencies and frequently children lock themselves in the trunk or are trapped inside the car. The more daring boy or girl loves to swing on dangling ropes, branches, and wires.

Every child is delighted when a construction gang moves in to build a new home or store. Sand and gravel piles, rickety scaffolding, uncovered beams, open second stories, and other attractions are exciting, especially to those who are fearless or unaware of danger.

As a boy I liked nothing better than to play tag in a house under construction after the workingmen had left. We would scoot up and down crude ladders and walk across open rafters. It was an easy jump from the second story and, if the ground was soft or the sand pile nearby, we would leap from the third floor. I was lucky, but several of my friends were hurt, particularly when darkness set in and we were getting tired.

Such accidents are avoidable. Many communities become safer places to live after a cleanup program. Junk yards and trash heaps are removed or fenced in, contractors hire watchmen, or the police patrol the sites at frequent intervals during the evening. This is wise, because children seem to have the knack of selecting risky stunts and hazardous areas.

STREP INFECTIONS

Mrs. A. D. writes: Is there such a thing as a strep cold? Could it lead to rheumatic fever in the same way as a strep throat?

REPLY

Yes. Streptococcal organisms invade the nose, throat, tonsils, sinuses, or lungs and lead to various kinds of respiratory ailments. Involvement of any of these structures can be followed by rheumatic fever in a susceptible person.

MOOD LIFTING PILLS

J. S. writes: Is it harmful for a physically healthy person to take a mood lifting drug?

REPLY

Probably not, provided you limit the number to one daily. It is advisable to discuss this question with a physician so you know whether this type of pill is habit forming and what you should look for along the line of side effects and toxic symptoms.

TONSIL CRYPTS

F. L. writes: Should tonsils be removed if they have pockets?

REPLY

No. All tonsils have pockets, or crypts, because of the presence of innumerable folds. Nothing need be done unless pus pockets develop.

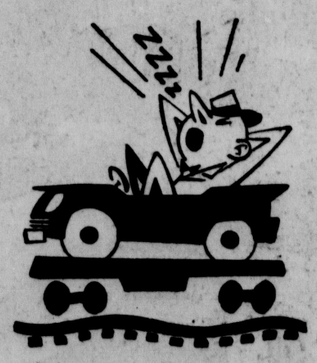
To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A weekend motor trip has been simplified and made infinitely more attractive in England by a move Americans would do well to copy.

British Railways has inaugurated a car-tourist service. A motorist no longer has to inch his way through the hopelessly congested streets of the cities themselves and the suburbs surrounding them. He simply loads his car on a piggy-back flatcar, and is taken smoothly by rail to the area he's chosen for his weekend romp—be it the mountains or the seashore.



Some trains provide picnic meals, too, that the motorist can eat either in a dining car or enthroned in his own sedan. After a carefree weekend tootling about in his automobile, he reloads it on the train, and sleeps in comfort all the way home.

Colombia's President Pays Sincere Tribute To American Foreign Policy

By Drew Pearson

BOGOTA—Following President Kennedy's helicopter-diplomacy visit to this capital of Colombia, I went to see the man who had given him what Press Secretary Pierre Salinger described as his biggest welcome.

I found President Alberto Lleras Camargo in the ancient palace of San Carlos built by the Spanish conquerors around 1550, some 50 years after Columbus discovered the new world. Its Spanish columns, huge patios, and mahogany doors have witnessed both the cruelty and the culture of Spanish conquistadors, the liberation movement of Simon Bolivar, and the ruthlessness of recent Colombian dictators.

Alberto Lleras looked a bit out of place behind a vast mahogany desk in the vast presidential room which is long enough to be a bowling alley. He is short and slim and looks more like a university professor than a president of a nation. He speaks excellent English from many years of residing in the United States and has given Colombia its most democratic government in history. He was surrounded by no secretaries or flunkeys.

I asked Lleras what, in his opinion, was behind the record demonstration for Kennedy.

"It was a great reception," he replied. "Greater than we expected, and my only explanation is that it was from the heart. We are all very happy.

"One opposition newspaper referred to the number of troops we called out, but there were no more than necessary to handle such a large crowd. Do you know how many people we put in jail?" Lleras asked. "Only 14. And they were jailed not on suspicion but because they were actually disturbing the peace."

What he referred to of course was the practice in many countries of rounding up known Communists or troublemakers before the arrival of important foreign visitors. De Gaulle, for instance, rounded up several hundred Hungarians and anti-Russians sent to France from Corsica prior to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's visit.

Anti-Castroism Stronger

"How much Castro strength is there in Colombia now?" I asked.

"Not much," the man who has led the attack against Castro in the Organization of American States replied. "Castro lost most of his strength here because of his killings. When people saw these on television they were revolted. Our rural population turned against him first and today even most of his supporters in the universities have turned. They now realize what he really is. And I would say, judging from the demonstration for President Kennedy, that the sentiment against Castro is stronger than ever."

Colombia together with Peru has pushed a resolution in the OAS, which Lleras used to head, to consider definite moves against Castro and his attempt to spread alien doctrines in the Western Hemisphere. Lleras indicated Colombia would continue pushing this discussion when it comes up for final action in January.

"How is the Peace Corps getting along?" I asked

"They are doing a fine job," was Lleras' reply. "They are bright, dedicated youngsters and our people like them. I told Sargeant Shriver when he was here that we could use twice as many and I hope he will send them. They aren't afraid of rolling up their sleeves and working with a pick and shovel."

President Lleras added, however, that it would be unwise to let any Peace Corps workers go into the isolated mountain areas of Colombia where lawlessness similar to our old Kentucky feuds still rages.

Sincere Compliment

Referring to Lleras' speech paying tribute to the unselfishness of American foreign policy, I remarked that this was the only time I had ever heard such a compliment from a foreign president.

"You are too big," was his explanation. "It's much easier not to praise a big and powerful nation. Nevertheless I think the world should be reminded that when Woodrow Wilson went to Versailles after World War I his sole demand was that the world be organized under law as the League of Nations, designed to keep the peace and that, when this failed and once again your nation went to war, once again Franklin Roosevelt's sole demand was for another organization designed to keep the peace.

"Also we need to be reminded that hardly was the World War II fighting over when the United States undertook, singlehanded, the greatest reconstruction project to aid war-ravaged countries without discrimination between friend or foe. And now, with the New Frontier, you have pledged yourselves to help backward countries solve their problems of poverty. It is not popular to say this, but nevertheless it should be said," said the president of Colombia earnestly.

I asked Lleras about the most difficult problem plaguing Colombia—the battle to succeed him next year. Under the Colombian constitution he cannot run again and the new president must be a conservative despite the fact that the liberals comprise a two-to-one majority. Some liberals led by Alfonso Lopez complain bitterly that this means minority rule and there has been talk of changing the constitution. If so, the Colombian army might take over.

When I asked Lleras "who will be your successor?" he replied, with a smile, "he will be a conservative."

"Do you ever wish you were back in the relative peace of the Pan American Union in Washington?" I asked.

"I never look back," replied the President of Colombia.

She was ideal. She was little, and old, but at last we had a real housekeeper. She had a face akin to a hard Irish winter, with doughy eyelids, but she was what we had been looking for. Her name was Maureen and she was about as tender as a storm trooper. "Out of my kitchen," she said to the children. "Raus! Vamoose!"

It was the first housekeeper Kelly had picked. I was proud, because, as a bachelor, I had lost 16 of them in a row. They came and went as though the house was a turnstile. Now Kelly had a chance to talk woman talk to the candidates, and she picked this one for several reasons.

The first was, in examining the living room, she studied the cork floor and said: "Scratch marks. A little buffing will take those out. Mrs., the cleaner you are about this place, the better I like it." The second was her references. Maureen had kept house for a family named White for years.

The recommendation from Mr. White was almost tearful. Maureen, he said, was not only sober and industrious, but further, she was like a member of the family. Mrs. White had been chronically ill for years, and Maureen had worked for a long time without salary. We were touched that anyone could be this good.

Maureen turned out to be a gem. The little girls fell in love with her and called her "Aunt Maureen." They kissed her goodnight and gave her special crayon drawings to hang up in her room. They even helped her to set the dinner table. Rocky, our police dog, followed the little old lady everywhere, tail threshing slowly.

One evening, I asked Maureen if she would like a highball. "God no!" she said. "That stuff starts trouble. I'm glad you don't ask me to serve it to your guests." Kelly had trouble getting Maureen to take days off. "I know it's my day off," she'd say. "But where am I going? I have no family. No friends except the Whites Do you want me to go out and walk the streets?"

I tried to get her to sit with us and watch T.V. after the children were in bed, but she declined. "I'm going upstairs and take this uniform off and use the portable set. I like to lie in bed and watch television."

So be it. The food was delicious; the house was impeccable. Even Flo Walter, my secretary, nodded approval. "You see," she said, "it takes a woman to pick a housekeeper." I agreed. She was tough and dictatorial — once when Kelly wanted to bake a pie, she was almost ordered off the premises—but she was also ideal.

Two Thursdays ago, she took a day off. She was always home, on these occasions, on the 8 p.m. bus. This time she wasn't. At 11, Kelly was worried. She asked me to phone the police, "No," I said. "The poor thing is just out getting loaded. Let her have a little fun."

"That's not funny," Kelly said. "She's not young, and she could have slipped off a curb or something." I phoned. I phoned the Keansburg police, Red Bank police, Sea Bright police, and Freehold police. No accidents involving little old ladies. No arrests. No Maureen McInerney.

I went to bed. At 2 a.m. Kelly nudged me. "I'm sorry," she whispered. "I just wanted you to know she's home safe." "Who's home safe?" I said. "Maureen. She just came in, blind as a bat. She said she didn't think she could make the stairs."

I sat up laughing. "Let's mind our own business," I said. "What she does on her time off is her business." I went back to sleep. In the morning, I passed Maureen in the kitchen. Her eyeballs looked like red road maps in the Arctic. "Don't worry about it," I said. "A girl owes it to herself to tie one on now and then. It deadens the inhibitions."

"Awful, she murmured. "Awful. To think that I'd . . ."

"Forget it," I said.

Last Thursday, she went out again. "No more of that stuff," she said. "It kills me." While she was gone, I cleaned out the living room bar for Christmas. There were six bottles of scotch, empty. I never put an empty in the bar. Kelly came downstairs looking worried. She had a grandfather's cup in her hand.

"What's this?" she asked, sniffing. I sniffed. "Gin," I said. "Pure gin. Where'd you find that?" She shook her head. Beside Maureen's bed." Suddenly, I realized why she liked to look at T.V. from the hay.

Maureen didn't come back Thursday. Or Friday. Or Saturday. Sunday. Or Monday. Tuesday we received a short phone call. "Boy," said Maureen. "Am I sick!" She didn't say where she was. We phoned the Whites. Sorry, they said. They had never employed her. They were merely old drinking buddies of Maureen's.

Maureen was sick. But Kelly was sicker . . .

England's Density Dwarfs Our Problem

England, with an area similar to that of Alabama but a population equal to one-fourth the United States total, has a density problem which dwarfs the troubles many American cities have as a result of too many people in too small an area.

It is not surprising, therefore, that while the United States continues to sprawl around growing suburbias England is concentrating on vertical expansion. Buckinghamshire County has come up with the most comprehensive plan yet concocted to administer to all the needs of people within the smallest area of ground space.

A 15-story apartment building will replace 20 individual dwellings; a clinic, garage and school will be located in an excavation beneath the building; all shops will be concentrated in an adjoining eight-story edifice, with a church on the top floor. All utilities will be provided by a community power plant in the basement of the commercial building.

Instead of the present 350 acres, Buckinghamshire County of the future will be contained in 20 acres of living accommodations, with the remainder devoted to cultivation and parks. According to the architect, the popularity of vertical living "can't miss. The average resident can live completely within the 20 acres."

Aside from the fact it would be next to impossible to find one citizen of any community who fits the statistical average of the town, the natural tendency of man's progress through the centuries has been to broaden his sphere of knowledge and association, not to restrict himself to smaller and smaller surroundings.

Americans would have no taste for a lifetime restricted to 20 acres, with or without the added restrictions of an entire town on this same plot of ground. Is English aversion to civilized captivity less pronounced?

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Rightist Extremists

I received a most thoughtful letter from Robert G. Kelsey of Freehold, New Jersey, who is critical of an article I wrote. He says:

". . . the idea that, although there has been vast changes, both economic and social in this country since 1914, these changes were not necessarily in the best interests of the country, and certainly not in the best interest of the individual."

Those of us who are conservatives need not become revolutionists to achieve our ends. If we ignore reality, we may become irrational. Granted that many of the changes that were introduced by the New Deal are hateful, what effect would their rejection in 1961 have upon economic and social conditions in 1961?

Let us take as an example the expansion of labor unionism since 1936. The trend has been not only to increase collective bargaining but to reorganize the social relationships between management and labor, to divide wages into two parts, cash payment and social payment; the former controlled by agreements between management and the union, the latter determined by acts of Congress, decisions of various government agencies. Also, the trend has been to establish a single industrial union in a company rather than a large number of separate and independent unions.

In 1936 and 1937, I opposed this trend as did many conservatives, but in 1961, the consequences of attempting to drop this system and to substitute for it the open shop, conflicting unions, no government control would be dangerous. The practical question is whether it is possible to revert to pre-1936 conditions.

Merely to say that a conservative dislikes Roosevelt provides no guidance for conduct in 1961 when we are at war, when our dollar is shamefully inflated, when our bankers have ceased to think in economic terms beyond that of a teller.

We are still a free people, able, under the law, to express our opinions and to vote for what we believe to be true. But, if we assume that war does not change economic and social conditions, we do not grasp our situation.

Kelsey says:

"You spend only what you have. This statement is obvious. As I have read in your own column, Mr. Sokolsky, there is a limit to the deficiency any one or any nation can stand. Ignoring the limitation can bring bankruptcy."

Of course, there is a limit to what a nation can spend. In time of peace that limit is controlled by the law of supply and demand, by prudence, by our competence to maintain order under mass opposition to government conduct.

In time of war, none of this is true. Instead of the law of supply and demand, we are governed by victory or defeat. What we need to recognize is that we now have no effective allies and that we need to meet war conditions out of our own resources.

One of our principal dangers is that unemployment can bring on revolutionary conditions. Kelsey says:

". . . that you do not legislate charity. Charity is voluntary and legislation is not . . ."

If my correspondent means that social measures are revolutionary, he must, as a practical man, be prepared to shoot down and kill all the unemployed or the partially employed. If he is not ready to do that, as I am sure he is not, he must be ready either to find work for them or create economic conditions which do increase the number of jobs available. The law of supply and demand will not protect the worker from the failure to find jobs under the conditions which today face him.

These are the facts which we face as a result of a devastating depression, three wars, the Russian Revolution and the disorganization of the world economic system by the appearance of new nations and the collapse of ancient empires.

It is unfortunate that so many who are opposed to Marxism reject the essential fact that we are forced to take positive stands to meet Marxism; that we cannot just say that everything is all wrong but that we have to offer a constructive program. Certainly, to hold that charity cannot be legislated was a good phrase in the 1930's; in the 1960's we are forced to recognize that should we ever have 10,000,000 unemployed again, we shall be forced to do plenty of legislating to save ourselves from a social revolution.

India Espouses Doctrine 'Might Makes Right'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — India has turned the clock back several centuries to espouse the doctrine that might makes right. No longer is India "non-aligned." It now is aligned with the aggressors—the Soviet Union and Red China—in grabbing near-by territory and arguing that it is merely following "the tide of history." The theft of the Portuguese Province of Goa by India's military forces indeed has put a black mark on the pages of history.

What is to happen to Mr. Nehru's cause if Red China starts moving across the Tibetan border to invade India or uses his argument to justify a seizure of the adjacent territory of Hong Kong from Britain? What becomes of the validity of treaty rights and international law if at any moment these can be converted into "scraps of paper" just as Hitler did in the 1930's?

Plainly the quest for peace by the processes of reason has suffered a setback. It is all the more distressing because the new violator of human rights — Premier Nehru — has hitherto been their staunchest defender. He has been the world's chief exponent of nonviolence and of the Pacific settlement of disputes.

Worst of all is the hypocritical and transparently immoral behavior of the United Nations itself. How can respect for that organization be maintained when it tolerates acts that tear to shreds the solemn obligations of its charter?

The Security Council was stopped by the Soviet veto from dealing with India's action, but the General Assembly can still function and express itself. It now is said this would be futile because the Afro-Asian Bloc would vote down any resolution condemning India's aggression. Nevertheless, a record vote would go a long way toward defining the issue for the future. If the charter is to be formally repudiated, the sooner the world knows it the earlier a new organization will be formed to bring together the nations that sincerely believe in a rule of law.

A rereading of the United Nations Charter adopted in 1945 at San Francisco is pertinent today. Here are some extracts that place aggression outside the pale of civilized conduct:

"Purposes and principles . . . to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace. . . .

"All members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state. . . .

"All members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfill in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the prsent charter."

Adlai Stevenson, the U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., acting upon instructions from Washington, made some pointed comments during the debate at the Security Council meeting at which the Soviet veto was registered against any action by the council denouncing India's course. He said:

"Can anyone believe that huge India is acting in self-defense against this little territory? . . . The League of Natoins died, I remind you, when its members no longer resisted the use of aggressive force. . . .

"The failure of the Security Council to call for a cease-fire in these simple circumstances is a failure of the United Nations. The veto of the Soviet Union is consistent with its long role of obstruction. But I find the attitude of some other members of the council profoundly disturbing and ominous because we have witnessed an effort to rewrite the charter, to sanction the use of force in international relations when it suits one's own purposes. This approach can only lead to chaos and to the disintegration of the United Nations."

The foregoing remarks point up the weakness that has been revealed time and again in the U.N. — that nations do their voting on the basis of political self-interest rather than from the viewpoint of international justice.

What are the tragic consequences already? Indonesia is preparing militarily to move against Dutch-held West New Guinea, which is located on an island hundreds of miles away from the Indonesian seat of government. The sole claim of Indonesia is that it has a right to whatever the Netherlands owns in the Archipelago. Will the U.N. step in to avoid the use of force? Will it help the people of New Guinea to exercise their right of self-determination?

And suppose the Peiping government decides to go back a few centuries to the days when Genghis Khan claimed all of Asia, including India, and asserts now that Red China has inherited all the land once claimed by preceding regimes?

There are many places in the world where bloodshed could ensue if the doctrine that might makes right is to be employed to justify seizing areas now held by other governments, whether as colonies or as integral parts of the sovereign territory of the nation attacked.

Throughout Africa, the torches of more war have been lighted. A West African newspaper says: "The amazing thing was that Nehru was so patient. When independent African countries are strong enough to give the command to pack up and go, Angola, Mazambique and Portuguese Guinea will suffer the same fate as Goa."

Nuclear wars may perhaps be averted, but little wars that can grow into big wars seem destined to plague the world. Sooner or later the United Nations must be reorganized to include truly free nations which are willing to make sacrifices to establish a rule of law for the settlement of international disputes.

TONGUE TWISTER: An assistant to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff has the prosaic name of Jones, but his given name is something else again — Boisfeuillet. Jones has carried this burden heavily through the years.

Therefore, he entered a House committee room where he was scheduled to testify with some trepidation.

Sure enough! — his turn to take the stand came and the chairman said after a moment's hesitation, "and now we'll hear from Mr. B. Jones."

Jones thought he had escaped the inevitable questions about his first name, but it was not to be. "Off the record," asked the chairman, "just how do you pronounce that first name of yours?"

Jones sighed wistfully and replied, "Bohfulay," adding hopefully, "my friends call me Bo." The chairman nodded understandingly and remarked, "We will now hear from Mr. Jones."

BIG PRIZE—Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and an understanding scientist, recently presented the Enrico Fermi Award to atomic scientist Hans Bethe. The award, by the AEC, is accompanied by a check for $50,000.

A reporter thought he'd kid Seaborg and asked him why he hadn't tried to get it for himself.

"For two reasons," replied Seaborg. "First, the obvious one and, second, because I won it last year."

Daring Children Face Many Hazards At Play

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Americans regard automobiles and other vehicles as the greatest menaces to their children's lives. But every city, town, and hamlet harbors other traps that parents ought to warn their offspring to avoid. Most boys are fascinated with junk heaps that offer treasures of broken glass, discarded tin cans, rusty nails, old clocks, and used machinery. A misstep in such debris usually means a cut or bruise and infections are not uncommon.

An abandoned shed is made for climbing, but weakened timbers collapse and occasionally we hear of fatal crushings in this way. There has been so much publicity about deaths from suffocation in discarded iceboxes anybody who fails to remove the door before throwing it out is potentially guilty of homicide.

Junked autos bring out mechanical tendencies and frequently children lock themselves in the trunk or are trapped inside the car. The more daring boy or girl loves to swing on dangling ropes, branches, and wires.

Every child is delighted when a construction gang moves in to build a new home or store. Sand and gravel piles, rickety scaffolding, uncovered beams, open second stories, and other attractions are exciting, especially to those who are fearless or unaware of danger.

As a boy I liked nothing better than to play tag in a house under construction after the workingmen had left. We would scoot up and down crude ladders and walk across open rafters. It was an easy jump from the second story and, if the ground was soft or the sand pile nearby, we would leap from the third floor. I was lucky, but several of my friends were hurt, particularly when darkness set in and we were getting tired.

Such accidents are avoidable. Many communities become safer places to live after a cleanup program. Junk yards and trash heaps are removed or fenced in, contractors hire watchmen, or the police patrol the sites at frequent intervals during the evening. This is wise, because children seem to have the knack of selecting risky stunts and hazardous areas.

STREP INFECTIONS

Mrs. A. D. writes: Is there such a thing as a strep cold? Could it lead to rheumatic fever in the same way as a strep throat?

REPLY

Yes. Streptococcal organisms invade the nose, throat, tonsils, sinuses, or lungs and lead to various kinds of respiratory ailments. Involvement of any of these structures can be followed by rheumatic fever in a susceptible person.

MOOD LIFTING PILLS

Probably not, provided you limit the number to one daily. It is advisable to discuss this question with a physician so you know whether this type of pill is habit forming and what you should look for along the line of side effects and toxic symptoms.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A weekend motor trip has been simplified and made infinitely more attractive in England by a move Americans would do well to copy.

British Railways has inaugurated a car-tourist service. A motorist no longer has to inch his way through the hopelessly congested streets of the cities themselves and the suburbs surrounding them. He simply loads his car on a piggy-back flatcar, and is taken smoothly by rail to the area he's chosen for his weekend romp—be it the mountains or the seashore.

Some trains provide picnic meals, too, that the motorist can eat either in a dining car or enthroned in his own sedan. After a carefree weekend tootling about in his automobile, he reloads it on the train, and sleeps in comfort all the way home.

Colombia's President Pays Sincere Tribute To American Foreign Policy

By Drew Pearson

BOGOTA—Following President Kennedy's helicopter-diplomacy visit to this capital of Colombia, I went to see the man who had given him what Press Secretary Pierre Salinger described as his biggest welcome.

I found President Alberto Lleras Camargo in the ancient palace of San Carlos built by the Spanish conquerors around 1550, some 50 years after Columbus discovered the new world. Its Spanish columns, huge patios, and mahogany doors have witnessed both the cruelty and the culture of Spanish conquistadors, the liberation movement of Simon Bolivar, and the ruthlessness of recent Colombian dictators.

Alberto Lleras looked a bit out of place behind a vast mahogany desk in the vast presidential room which is long enough to be a bowling alley. He is short and slim and looks more like a university professor than a president of a nation. He speaks excellent English from many years of residing in the United States and has given Colombia its most democratic government in history. He was surrounded by no secretaries or flunkeys.

I asked Lleras what, in his opinion, was behind the record demonstration for Kennedy.

"It was a great reception," he replied. "Greater than we expected, and my only explanation is that it was from the heart. We are all very happy.

"One opposition newspaper referred to the number of troops we called out, but there were no more than necessary to handle such a large crowd. Do you know how many people we put in jail?" Lleras asked. "Only 14. And they were jailed not on suspicion but because they were actually disturbing the peace."

What he referred to of course was the practice in many countries of rounding up known Communists or troublemakers before the arrival of important foreign visitors. De Gaulle, for instance, rounded up several hundred Hungarians and anti-Russians sent to France from Corsica prior to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's visit.

Anti-Castroism Stronger

"How much Castro strength is there in Colombia now?" I asked.

"Not much," the man who has led the attack against Castro in the Organization of American States replied. "Castro lost most of his strength here because of his killings. When people saw these on television they were revolted. Our rural population turned against him first and today even most of his supporters in the universities have turned. They now realize what he really is. And I would say, judging from the demonstration for President Kennedy, that the sentiment against Castro is stronger than ever."

Colombia together with Peru has pushed a resolution in the OAS, which Lleras used to head, to consider definite moves against Castro and his attempt to spread alien doctrines in the Western Hemisphere. Lleras indicated Colombia would continue pushing this discussion when it comes up for final action in January.

"How is the Peace Corps getting along?" I asked

"They are doing a fine job," was Lleras' reply. "They are bright, dedicated youngsters and our people like them. I told Sargeant Shriver when he was here that we could use twice as many and I hope he will send them. They aren't afraid of rolling up their sleeves and working with a pick and shovel."

President Lleras added, however, that it would be unwise to let any Peace Corps workers go into the isolated mountain areas of Colombia where lawlessness similar to our old Kentucky feuds still rages.

Sincere Compliment

Referring to Lleras' speech paying tribute to the unselfishness of American foreign policy, I remarked that this was the only time I had ever heard such a compliment from a foreign president.

"You are too big," was his explanation. "It's much easier not to praise a big and powerful nation. "Awful, she murmured. "Awful. To think that I'd . . ."

"Forget it," I said.

Last Thursday, she went out again. "No more of that stuff," she said. "It kills me." While she was gone, I cleaned out the living room bar for Christmas. There were six bottles of scotch, empty. I never put an empty in the bar. Kelly came downstairs looking worried. She had a grandfather's cup in her hand.

"What's this?" she asked, sniffing. I sniffed. "Gin," I said. "Pure gin. Where'd you find that?" She shook her head. Beside Maureen's bed." Suddenly, I realized why she liked to look at T.V. from the hay.

Maureen didn't come back Thursday. Or Friday. Or Saturday. Sunday. Or Monday. Tuesday we received a short phone call. "Boy," said Maureen. "Am I sick!" She didn't say where she was. We phoned the Whites. Sorry, they said. They had never employed her. They were merely old drinking buddies of Maureen's.

Maureen was sick. But Kelly was sicker . . .

A jail escapee in Chrisman, Ill., discovered the weather outside too cold and returned to the hoosegow to surrender. He found out the cooler isn't so cool, after all.

A 10-pound radio transmitter is now in orbit around the globe aboard a Discoverer satellite. Just another case of a little bit going a long way?

Kane County in Illinois now has its own flag, designed by students in a contest. That's one way of gaining a pennant without having to win it.

What is so rare, points out the man at the next desk, as a college student who comes home to spend the holidays and actually does stay home?

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—You don't need a seer to predict that 1962 will be a big, BIG year for Jane Fonda. Henry's pretty and talented daughter has more than made it on her own. As 1962 dawns, she comes up with one of the prizes of the season, the femme lead in the screen version of Tennessee Williams' comedy, "Period of Adjustment," for Larry Weingarten at MGM.

George Hill, who directed the play on Broadway and also will do the picture, was one of Jane's biggest boosters. But it didn't take too much salesmanship. Boss Sol Siegel and Weingarten had seen Jane in her two newest movies, "Walk on the Wild Side" and "Chapman Report," and they were sold. Isobel Lennart is completing the screenplay for a March starting date.

That mutual admiration society of two, composed of Gina Rowlands and her talented ever-lovin' husband, director John Cassavetes, are teaming up for two pictures together. The day I interviewed Gina she was excited about making "The Spiral Road" with Rock Hudson. But not nearly as excited as she is over her private life role of Mrs. Cassavetes. And she doesn't care who knows how crazy she is about Mr. C.

It has already been announced that Gina and John will make "A Child Is Waiting" for Stanley Kramer. But the second they have on tap is "Piece of Paradise" in which Cassavetes will star Gina for their own company. Budd Schulberg wrote the script.

Paul Kohner, who probably represents more foreign actors than any other agent, has just added Louis Jourdan to two other important Frenchmen, Maurice Chevalier and Charles Boyer. Jourdan has gone to Italy to make a movie.

Paul was telling me that he carried a huge painting of his two children by Diego Rivera out of their home when the fire destroyed a house 15 feet away. He has had a wrenched back ever since. Now he says they've had tons of mud filling in his home, caused by the recent rainfall.

He said Susan and her brother will go skiing during the holidays, since she will not be finished with "Freud" until the last of January.

Caroline Delegation Will Run As Team

DENTON, Md. (AP)—The members of the Caroline County delegation announced Wednesday they will seek re-election as a team next year and would file soon for the Democratic primary next May.

Sen. Harry R. Hughes and Dels. Frland B. Blades and James A. Wise also endorsed the primary campaign slate headed by Gov. Tawes.

" . . . We feel our experience and cooperative efforts will enable us to better serve the people of Caroline County by continuing as a legislative team dedicated to that cause," the legislators said in a statement.

Reserve Unit Seeks Veterans

The local Naval Reserve division has openings for men with prior military service, it has been announced by Lt. Joseph McDaniel, recruiting officer for Surface Division 5-9.

Lt. McDaniel said the Cumberland unit "is in need of qualified men who held petty officer or petty officer striker ratings while on active duty."

He outlined benefits of the local division as full day's pay for each three-hour drill per week, two weeks' paid training duty at sea (ports of call in the past have included Bermuda, Halifax, N.S., San Juan, Puerto Rico, Canal Zone, Miami, Fla., New York, and Boston), a chance to meet new people and make new friends, self-improvement through training, and chance for advancement to higher responsibility and pay.

All interested men, Lt. McDaniel said, should phone PA 2-0970 between 8 a. m. and 4:15 p. m. Monday through Friday, or visit the training center during Wednesday night drill on McKaig's Hill.

Lt. McDaniel added: "In view of the present emergency, every man can serve his country while retaining civilian status."

Flash Flood Is Listed In First Place

Sports, Politics, Business, Crime Are All Included

Editor's Note: Following is the first of five dispatches reviewing West Virginia's Top Ten news stories of 1961, the year in government and politics, business and industry, the lighter side of the news, and sports.

By J. RICHARD TOREN

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—It had been a wet July in Charleston — five inches of rain in less than three weeks — and little attention was paid when a new storm broke the night of the 19th.

In a matter of three hours the city was deluged by five more inches of rain. By around 10 o'clock police got their first calls for help from householders who saw muddy water rising around their homes.

By midnight, as one policeman later described it, "All hell broke loose."

In a few brief hours, scores of homes were destroyed — many leaving not a trace but their foundation stones — and hudreds were damaged. Automobiles were swept away like toys, streets undermined, trees bent and broken all over the city.

Hardest hit were three "hollow"—Elk Two - Mile, Garrison Avenue and Wertz Avenue — where narrow valleys penetrate the hills that surround the city. It was these streams, turned into raging torrents by the deluge of rain, that caused the damage — not the Kanawha and Elk Rivers which flow through the capital city.

Twenty - two persons were counted dead by the time mop-up operations were well under way the following afternoon —one of them swept down Elk Two-Mile and the Elk, Kanawha and Ohio Rivers to Greenup, Ky., before her body was found.

This flash flood — which led President Kennedy to declare the city a major disaster area — was West Virginia's top new story of the year in the judgment of the UPI staff.

List Top Ten

Here is the list of Top Ten stories, selected on the basis of their impact on the reading public.

1. Flash floods kill 22 in Charleston.
2. $15 million state income tax enacted.
3. Legislature approves liquor referendum.
4. North-South highway placed in Interstate system.
5. National Guard called to active duty.
6. Congressional districts realigned.
7. Marshall becomes state's second university.
8. Two women admit $250,000 Shinnston embezzlement.
9. Big Bill Lias ruled non-deportable.
10. New industries improve state's economic picture.

Barron Shows Influence

Gov. W. W. Barron demonstrated his influence over the Legislature by getting easy approval in February of a $15 million state income tax — a type of levy the state abandoned 20 years earlier.

New machinery had to be set up to start collecting the levy—amounting to 6 per cent of the taxpayer's federal income tax — April 1.

Another action of the Legislature which grabbed big headlines in March was approval—following a 10-year battle — of a proposed constitutional amendment to legalize liquor by the drink, on a local option basis. The controversial plan, to be voted on next November, got through the Senate with surprisingly ease then barely squeezed past the House.

In October, good news from Washington: the long - sought North - South superhighway was incorporated into the Interstate system, meaning the federal government will pay 90 per cent of the cost. Work had already begun on a 50-50 matching basis when the news came.

A different kind of news came from Washington to an estimated 2,500 West Virginia National Guardsmen, including practically all members of the big, statewide 150th Armored Cavalry Regiment. They and several smaller units were called to one year's active duty as part of an armed forces buildup resulting from the Berlin crisis.

Districts Shuffled

The Legislature drew new boundary lines from the state congressional districts, scheduled to be reduced from six to five because of a population decline. Its handiwork set the stage for a major battle next year by putting the Democratic dean of the present delegation, Cleveland Bailey, in

Consol Coal Co. Urges Action On Pipeline

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Consolidation Coal Co. Wednesday urged West Virginia lawmakers to take the lead in passing legislation to permit construction of a coal pipeline to the East Coast.

Consolidation made the statement in the wake of the Delaware Legislature delaying passage of a proposed bill which would permit a coal pipeline company to qualify as a public utility in the state. This would enable a pipeline company to acquire the necessary rights-of-way and permits.

The Delaware House passed the proposed pipeline bill by an overwhelming majority but it must be given more consideration by the Senate when it reconvenes at the next term of the Legislature in February, 1962.

The Delaware Senate has scheduled public hearings to be held in February on the proposed bill.

Gov. W. W. Barron of West Virginia has asked the state Legislature to convene Jan. 10 to pass a pipeline law in his state.

The proposed coal pipeline, which will provide lower cost fuel for eastern states, is essential to future development of West Virginia coal reserves, according to Conolidation Coal. It will also hike employment for West Virginia miners, the company said.

W. Va. Guard Unit Morale "Very Good"

Inspection Shows Few Complaints

CAMP PICKETT, Va. (UPI) — Sen. Robert C. Byrd and Rep. Cleveland Bailey, both D-W. Va., reported Wednesday that the morale of West Virginia National Guardsmen and reservists training here is "generally very good."

Byrd and Bailey made a tour of the facilities and spoke with the men of West Virginia's 150th Armored Cavalry Regiment. The units from 20 West Virginia cities were called to active duty last October.

Rep. Arch Moore, R-W. Va., had earlier toured the camp and said the men "had a case" as far as complaints about facilities and equipment were concerned.

In a joint statement, Byrd and Bailey said "several of the men said they had been 'personally shocked' to read stories claiming that their morale was low. Some felt that such stories were reflections on them and these individuals resented any inference that they were being depicted as gloomy or improperly fed."

The West Virginia congressmen met with both officers and men of the 150th and said they asked questions regarding their food, morale, barracks, living conditions, equipment and passes.

The statement said that, "one small group of men felt they were not being properly trained. This feeling was not voiced by any other group."

"The men were virtually unanimous in saying that they had no complaints regarding the quantity and quality of the food served," the statement said. It also noted the men are generally satisfied with the situation regarding passes.

Flash Flood Is Listed In First Place

Sports, Politics, Business, Crime Are All Included

Editor's Note: Following is the first of five dispatches reviewing West Virginia's Top Ten news stories of 1961, the year in government and politics, business and industry, the lighter side of the news, and sports.

By J. RICHARD TOREN

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—It had been a wet July in Charleston — five inches of rain in less than three weeks — and little attention was paid when a new storm broke the night of the 19th.

In a matter of three hours the city was deluged by five more inches of rain. By around 10 o'clock police got their first calls for help from householders who saw muddy water rising around their homes.

By midnight, as one policeman later described it, "All hell broke loose."

In a few brief hours, scores of homes were destroyed — many leaving not a trace but their foundation stones — and hudreds were damaged. Automobiles were swept away like toys, streets undermined, trees bent and broken all over the city.

Hardest hit were three "hollow"—Elk Two - Mile, Garrison Avenue and Wertz Avenue — where narrow valleys penetrate the hills that surround the city. It was these streams, turned into raging torrents by the deluge of rain, that caused the damage — not the Kanawha and Elk Rivers which flow through the capital city.

Twenty - two persons were counted dead by the time mop-up operations were well under way the following afternoon —one of them swept down Elk Two-Mile and the Elk, Kanawha and Ohio Rivers to Greenup, Ky., before her body was found.

This flash flood — which led President Kennedy to declare the city a major disaster area — was West Virginia's top new story of the year in the judgment of the UPI staff.

List Top Ten

Here is the list of Top Ten stories, selected on the basis of their impact on the reading public.

1. Flash floods kill 22 in Charleston.
2. $15 million state income tax enacted.
3. Legislature approves liquor referendum.
4. North-South highway placed in Interstate system.
5. National Guard called to active duty.
6. Congressional districts realigned.
7. Marshall becomes state's second university.
8. Two women admit $250,000 Shinnston embezzlement.
9. Big Bill Lias ruled non-deportable.
10. New industries improve state's economic picture.

Barron Shows Influence

Gov. W. W. Barron demonstrated his influence over the Legislature by getting easy approval in February of a $15 million state income tax — a type of levy the state abandoned 20 years earlier.

New machinery had to be set up to start collecting the levy—amounting to 6 per cent of the taxpayer's federal income tax — April 1.

Another action of the Legislature which grabbed big headlines in March was approval—following a 10-year battle — of a proposed constitutional amendment to legalize liquor by the drink, on a local option basis. The controversial plan, to be voted on next November, got through the Senate with surprisingly ease then barely squeezed past the House.

In October, good news from Washington: the long - sought North - South superhighway was incorporated into the Interstate system, meaning the federal government will pay 90 per cent of the cost. Work had already begun on a 50-50 matching basis when the news came.

A different kind of news came from Washington to an estimated 2,500 West Virginia National Guardsmen, including practically all members of the big, statewide 150th Armored Cavalry Regiment. They and several smaller units were called to one year's active duty as part of an armed forces buildup resulting from the Berlin crisis.

Districts Shuffled

The Legislature drew new boundary lines from the state congressional districts, scheduled to be reduced from six to five because of a population decline. Its handiwork set the stage for a major battle next year by putting the Democratic dean of the present delegation, Cleveland Bailey, in

Consol Coal Co. Urges Action On Pipeline

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Consolidation Coal Co. Wednesday urged West Virginia lawmakers to take the lead in passing legislation to permit construction of a coal pipeline to the East Coast.

Consolidation made the statement in the wake of the Delaware Legislature delaying passage of a proposed bill which would permit a coal pipeline company to qualify as a public utility in the state. This would enable a pipeline company to acquire the necessary rights-of-way and permits.

The Delaware House passed the proposed pipeline bill by an overwhelming majority but it must be given more consideration by the Senate when it reconvenes at the next term of the Legislature in February, 1962.

The Delaware Senate has scheduled public hearings to be held in February on the proposed bill.

Gov. W. W. Barron of West Virginia has asked the state Legislature to convene Jan. 10 to pass a pipeline law in his state.

The proposed coal pipeline, which will provide lower cost fuel for eastern states, is essential to future development of West Virginia coal reserves, according to Conolidation Coal. It will also hike employment for West Virginia miners, the company said.

Bonham Employes Are Entertained

KEYSER — Employes of the Bonham Company were entertained at a turkey dinner in the Rosemont Restaurant Monday night following a social hour in the Rose Room.

W. Va. Guard Unit Morale "Very Good"

CAMP PICKETT, Va. (UPI) — Sen. Robert C. Byrd and Rep. Cleveland Bailey, both D-W. Va., reported Wednesday that the morale of West Virginia National Guardsmen and reservists training here is "generally very good."

Byrd and Bailey made a tour of the facilities and spoke with the men of West Virginia's 150th Armored Cavalry Regiment. The units from 20 West Virginia cities were called to active duty last October.

Rep. Arch Moore, R-W. Va., had earlier toured the camp and said the men "had a case" as far as complaints about facilities and equipment were concerned.

In a joint statement, Byrd and Bailey said "several of the men said they had been 'personally shocked' to read stories claiming that their morale was low. Some felt that such stories were reflections on them and these individuals resented any inference that they were being depicted as gloomy or improperly fed."

The West Virginia congressmen met with both officers and men of the 150th and said they asked questions regarding their food, morale, barracks, living conditions, equipment and passes.

The statement said that, "one small group of men felt they were not being properly trained. This feeling was not voiced by any other group."

"The men were virtually unanimous in saying that they had no complaints regarding the quantity and quality of the food served," the statement said. It also noted the men are generally satisfied with the situation regarding passes.

1961 Crops Exceed Estimates Despite Production Controls

Maryland Shows High Acre Yield

Wheat, Soybeans, Tobacco, Corn And Apples Included

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's final report of the year put production of wheat at 1,234,705,000 bushels and corn for grain at 3,624,313,000 bushels.

The wheat crop estimate is 23,879,000 bushels more than the 1,210,826,000 bushels previously forecast. It compares with a revised estimate of 1,357,272,000 bushels for 1960 and the ten-year (1950-59) average of 1,094,770,000 bushels.

The corn estimate is 75,500,000 bushels more than last month's forecast of 3,548,813,000 acres. It compares with last year's revised figure of 3,908,070,000 bushels and 3,013,797,000 for the ten-year average.

Both crops were grown under programs designed to curtail overproduction.

The winter wheat crop was reported at 1,076,274,000 bushels compared with last year's revised estimate of 1,110,557,000 bushels and the ten-year average of 839,240,000 bushels.

The spring wheat crop was put at 158,431,000 bushels compared with the 1960 revised figure of 246,715,000 bushels and the ten-year average of 255,530,000 bushels.

Spring wheat other than durum was reported at 139,476,000 bushels compared with last year's revised estimate of 212,574,000 bushels and the ten-year average of 230,272,000 bushels.

Durum wheat was put at 18,955,000 bushels compared with the 1960 revised figure of 34,141,000 bushels and the ten-year average of 25,258,000.

The acreage harvested, the yield per acre and the production, respectively, of important crops by area states included:

CORN

Maryland 369,000 acres harvested; 60 bushels per acre and production 22,140,000 bushels.

WHEAT

TOBACCO

Maryland 40,000 acres harvested; 900 pounds per acre and production 36,000,000 pounds; West Virginia 2,700; 1,450 and 3,915,000.

APPLES

(Production Only)

Maryland 1,500,000 bushels; West Virginia 5,500,000.

Note Decline In Some W.Va. Major Crops

Commissioner Recommends Wide Diversification

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Production of most major crops in West Virginia was reported Wednesday to have declined this year, and State Agriculture Commissioner John T. Johnson said prospects for a future uptrend don't appear very bright.

Corn, wheat, oat, barley and potato production all were down. Johnson said the drop was a combination of weather, prices, employment trends and land conversion.

Johnson regarded the latter two factors as among the most significant.

"More and more of the big, flat farmland in the Ohio Valley is being taken over for industry and housing," he said, noting that crops were only harvested on a total of 819,000 acres this year, down 4 per cent from 1960.

Hillsides Unprofitable

"The type land necessary for growing big field crops is steadily diminishing," he said. "I wouldn't expect the cultivation of such crops would ever reach former levels again.

"You just can't grow such crops adequately on a hillside. It's not profitable. You can't use the big machinery and if it rains hard you may lose all your top soil."

Johnson said West Virginia apparently can expect more of a trend toward part - time, small farming — particularly tobacco, berries and truck farming.

The trend away from full-time farming continues, he said, with people turning to industrial employment and evening and week end farming.

But the commissioner said this doesn't necessarily mean that farming is a dying industry in West Virginia.

"We can't compete with mass production technology in raising such things as wheat as in the plains states. But we can develop such diversification in agriculture as in tobacco, fruit and berries and other specialized crops," he said.

Emphasis Shifts

This is in areas in which the agriculture department has been striving increasingly, along with the state's apple and peach production in the Eastern Panhandle. Greater emphasis is being placed on market development, publicity and special food industries like mushroom growing.

Johnson said the dairy industry also is continuing to grow in the state and will about equal the $47.4 million worth of crops harvested this year.

Crop production was down $3 million from 1960 or about 6 per cent.

The major increase was in apple production which totaled 5.5 million bushels, third highest on record in the state. Tobacco output increased 203,000 pounds to 3.9 million and hay was up 39,000 tons to 955,000 tons. Peach production was about the same as 1960 at 750,000.

Corn was down 800,000 bushels to 4.2 million bushels, wheat down 129,000 bushels to 600,000 bushels, oats down 200,000 bushels to 862,000 bushels, barley down 56,000 bushels to 395,000 bushels and potatoes down 1.45 million pounds to 5.85 million pounds.

Patriotic Presentation

the same district with Arch A. Moore, only Republican among the six House members.

A whirlwind campaign by Marshall College supporters led the Legislature to change that institution's name to Marshall University. Opponents said it would mean less support for West Virginia University, but Marshall said it was already a university in fact and deserved to be one in name.

Biggest crime story of the year was the uncovering of an embezzlement of nearly one - quarter million dollars at the Bank of Shinnston. Confessions were made by Lucy Fortney, 62, a staid spinster, and shapely blonde Mrs. Joe Ann Stevens, 25. The FBI said each had acted independently of the other.

A legal battle that stretched over nearly eight years ended with former Wheeling gambler and bootlegger William G. (Big Bill) Lias the winner over the federal government. A federal judge ruled the government had not proved Lias was an alien—born in Greece, it said—and deportable.

The business scene brightened with announcement of several new industries — including North American Aviation at Princeton, Lockheed at Clarksburg, Food Machinery in the old Naval Ordnance plant at South Charleston. As the year ended, the Chamber of Commerce said it was close to being the second best in history.

1961 Crops Exceed Estimates Despite Production Controls

Maryland Shows High Acre Yield

Wheat, Soybeans, Tobacco, Corn And Apples Included

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's final report of the year put production of wheat at 1,234,705,000 bushels and corn for grain at 3,624,313,000 bushels.

The wheat crop estimate is 23,879,000 bushels more than the 1,210,826,000 bushels previously forecast. It compares with a revised estimate of 1,357,272,000 bushels for 1960 and the ten-year (1950-59) average of 1,094,770,000 bushels.

The corn estimate is 75,500,000 bushels more than last month's forecast of 3,548,813,000 acres. It compares with last year's revised figure of 3,908,070,000 bushels and 3,013,797,000 for the ten-year average.

Both crops were grown under programs designed to curtail overproduction.

The winter wheat crop was reported at 1,076,274,000 bushels compared with last year's revised estimate of 1,110,557,000 bushels and the ten-year average of 839,240,000 bushels

The spring wheat crop was put at 158,431,000 bushels compared with the 1960 revised figure of 246,715,000 bushels and the ten-year average of 255,530,000 bushels.

Spring wheat other than durum was reported at 139,476,000 bushels compared with last year's revised estimate of 212,574,000 bushels and the ten-year average of 230,272,000 bushels.

Durum wheat was put at 18,955,000 bushels compared with the 1960 revised figure of 34,141,000 bushels and the ten-year average of 25,258,000.

The acreage harvested, the yield per acre and the production, respectively, of important crops by area states included:

CORN

Maryland 369,000 acres harvested; 60 bushels per acre and production 22,140,000 bushels.

WHEAT

Maryland 142,000 acres harvested; 26 bushels per acre and production 3,692,000 bushels.

SOYBEANS FOR BEANS

Maryland 257,000 acres harvested; 24 bushels per acre and production 6,168,000 bushels.

TOBACCO

Maryland 40,000 acres harvested; 900 pounds per acre and production 36,000,000 pounds; West Virginia 2,700; 1,450 and 3,915,000.

APPLES

(Production Only)

Maryland 1,500,000 bushels; West Virginia 5,500,000.

Note Decline In Some W.Va. Major Crops

Commissioner Recommends Wide Diversification

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Production of most major crops in West Virginia was reported Wednesday to have declined this year, and State Agriculture Commissioner John T. Johnson said prospects for a future uptrend don't appear very bright.

Corn, wheat, oat, barley and potato production all were down. Johnson said the drop was a combination of weather, prices, employment trends and land conversion.

Johnson regarded the latter two factors as among the most significant.

"More and more of the big, flat farmland in the Ohio Valley is being taken over for industry and housing," he said, noting that crops were only harvested on a total of 819,000 acres this year, down 4 per cent from 1960.

Hillsides Unprofitable

"The type land necessary for growing big field crops is steadily diminishing," he said. "I wouldn't expect the cultivation of such crops would ever reach former levels again.

"You just can't grow such crops adequately on a hillside. It's not profitable. You can't use the big machinery and if it rains hard you may lose all your top soil."

Johnson said West Virginia apparently can expect more of a trend toward part - time, small farming — particularly tobacco, berries and truck farming.

The trend away from full-time farming continues, he said, with people turning to industrial employment and evening and week end farming.

But the commissioner said this doesn't necessarily mean that farming is a dying industry in West Virginia.

"We can't compete with mass production technology in raising such things as wheat as in the plains states. But we can develop such diversification in agriculture as in tobacco, fruit and berries and other specialized crops," he said.

Emphasis Shifts

This is in areas in which the agriculture department has been striving increasingly, along with the state's apple and peach production in the Eastern Panhandle. Greater emphasis is being placed on market development, publicity and special food industries like mushroom growing.

Johnson said the dairy industry also is continuing to grow in the state and will about equal the $47.4 million worth of crops harvested this year.

Crop production was down $3 million from 1960 or about 6 per cent.

The major increase was in apple production which totaled 5.5 million bushels, third highest on record in the state. Tobacco output increased 203,000 pounds to 3.9 million and hay was up 39,000 tons to 955,000 tons. Peach production was about the same as 1960 at 750,000.

Corn was down 800,000 bushels to 4.2 million bushels, wheat down 129,000 bushels to 600,000 bushels, oats down 200,000 bushels to 862,000 bushels, barley down 56,000 bushels to 395,000 bushels and potatoes down 1.45 million pounds to 5.85 million pounds.

A whirlwind campaign by Marshall College supporters led the Legislature to change that institution's name to Marshall University. Opponents said it would mean less support for West Virginia University, but Marshall said it was already a university in fact and deserved to be one in name.

Biggest crime story of the year was the uncovering of an embezzlement of nearly one - quarter million dollars at the Bank of Shinnston. Confessions were made by Lucy Fortney, 62, a staid spinster, and shapely blonde Mrs. Joe Ann Stevens, 25. The FBI said each had acted independently of the other.

A legal battle that stretched over nearly eight years ended with former Wheeling gambler and bootlegger William G. (Big Bill) Lias the winner over the federal government. A federal judge ruled the government had not proved Lias was an alien—born in Greece, it said—and deportable.

The business scene brightened with announcement of several new industries — including North American Aviation at Princeton, Lockheed at Clarksburg, Food Machinery in the old Naval Ordnance plant at South Charleston. As the year ended, the Chamber of Commerce said it was close to being the second best in history.

LaSalle Invades Fort Hill For 52nd Game Of Cage Series Tonight

Geatz's Team Unbeaten In Four Starts

Sentinels Hold One Game Edge, 26-25; Northern At Bruce

LaSalle High School's Explorers, who have won outright or shared the city basketball championship the past four years, will meet Fort Hill's Sentinels tonight on the Fort Hill court in the fifty-second game of their series which had its inception in 1937.

This is the first of the city games this season and is expected to draw a large crowd to the Greenway Avenue court.

Sentinels Lead Series

The LaSalle-Fort Hill series is one of the most interesting in the tri-state area. The Sentinels now hold a 26-25 edge in victories but LaSalle has copped the last five games, including sweeps last season, 84-72 and 79-58, and in 1960, 52-50 and 65-46, and the last game of the 1959 set, 68-51.

LaSalle goes into tonight's game with a 4-0 record with victories over Fort Ashby, 71-64, Beall 59-44, Mt. Savage, 73-62, and Valley, 65-51. Fort Hill won the opener from Fort Ashby, 67-45 but dropped an 82-68 decision to powerful Martinsburg High School here Tuesday night.

The sharpshooters who will bear watching in tonight's encounter are Michael Long and Johnny Sloan, who have scored 100 and 77 points, respectively, for LaSalle, and Ronnie Manges and Pat Wilson who have collected 45 and 35 markers in the first two contests for Fort Hill.

The next city game is set for January 19 when Allegany hosts Fort Hill.

Northern Visits Bruce

Bruce High School's Bulldogs are scheduled to entertain the Northern High School Huskies tonight in Westernport. Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bulldogs will be making their fourth start of the season, having won two of three games played to date. Northern has split even in four outings.

Oldtown High School (2-3) is carded to play the Allegany High junior varsity at Campobello.

In other Friday night games, Romney High's Pioneers host the Alumni, Central High of Woodstock, Va., visits Mathias High School, Berlin-Brothersvalley tackles the Hyndman High Hornets at Hyndman and Hancock is slated to invade Berkeley Springs.

Cadets Play Waynesboro

Homer Brooks' undefeated Frederick Cadets entertain Waynesboro High School while Nick Scallion's Rebels of Southern Hagerstown High School play "Shad" Hunt's St. Maria Goretti High floormen on the latter's court in the Hub City.

The Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's always room at the top in the big town.

It's talent that counts and a guy can hit it big on his first shot no matter where he started out—say Lawrence, Kans., or a rundown neighborhood in Brooklyn.

Ralph Houk made it on his first try. So did Allie Sherman.

Out of Lawrence, came tough, cigar - smoking, war hero Houk to sit on the hottest managerial seat in baseball as successor to the fantastically successful Casey Stengel. Ralph won a world championship for the New York Yankees in his rookie season.

And from a seedy section of Brooklyn, where football runs a poor third in popularity to baseball and basketball, came skinny Allie Sherman to lead the New York Giants into the National Football League's "world series" against the Green Bay Packers—also in his rookie season.

Big Town Demanding

The people who run the sports in the big town are demanding, because the customers are that way, too, but neither the Yankees nor the Giants were afraid to gamble with young men more or less untested under pressure.

And the gamble paid off — but big.

Houk was faced at the outset with two major problems, the Stengel reputation and a roster depleted by the American League's hasty expansion to 10 clubs for 1961.

"I'll do things my own way," he promised. And that he did.

He junked Casey's platoon system and came up with an everyday lineup. He took Whitey Ford out of the "spot pitcher" class and put him into a regular rotation that made Whitey a 20-plus winner for the first time. He also took away Yogi Berra's catcher's mask, put Yogi in the outfield, and made Elston Howard his No. 1 receiver.

Then came the sort of problem that could have wrecked a rookie manager as Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle became involved in an assault on Babe Ruth's home run record. Roger and Mickey naturally drew heavy publicity, much of it at the expense of other players who were delivering pennant-winning performances.

Refused To Take Sides

Houk refused to take sides in the personal duel between Roger and Mickey—"I hope they both break the record" — and he frequently drew attention to his other aces in an effort to keep the peace.

Out in Detroit, rookie manager Bob Scheffing was turning in a dandy job with the Tigers and wound up with the American League's manager - of - the - year award. But it was Houk who won the jackpots on the scoreboard.

Sherman, a brilliant but undersized quarterback in his day, actually was second choice as coach of the Giants, who had hoped to regain Vince Lombardi from the Packers when Giant coach Jim Lee Howell stepped out after last season.

Allie took a look at his roster, asked his front-office to trade for certain types and got what he wanted.

For awhile his situation looked desperate as the Giants blew their opener to the St. Louis Cardinals and struggled to down Pittsburgh and Washington with the heavy end of the schedule still to come.

However, those trades — particularly for quarterback Y.A. Tittle and end Del Shofner—began to pay off. The Giants came through and into the championship playoffs.

Rookie Of Year Honors In AFL Go To Faison

Chargers' Defensive End Is Named By UPI

By NORMAN MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Earl Faison, the San Diego Chargers' 256-pound defensive end who played most of the season in the opposing teams' backfield, Thursday was voted the 1961 American Football League rookie-of-the-year by United Press International.

Faison, a six-foot-four former University of Indiana star, was elected in a poll of three league writers from each city. He received 11 of the 24 votes cast, compared to 5 for tackle Ernie Ladd, his defensive linemate at San Diego.

In the opinion of the writers, the Chargers thus had the two best rookies in the AFL this season. Faison was San Diego's No. 1 choice in last year's draft. Earlier this week, he and Ladd were selected on the All-League team by the same panel of writers.

In sizing up Faison, Coach Sid Gillman of the Chargers said: "He has the intelligence, the strength, the speed and above all, he is almost sadistic on a football field."

Faison proved a fierce tackler in his rookie pro season and opposing runners found his end difficult, and sometimes impossible, to turn.

But he was at his best when it came to rushing the passer.

Following Faison and Ladd in the voting came linebacker E. J. Holub of the Dallas Texans with 3 votes. Two other Chargers, fullback Keith Lincoln and linebacker Chuck Allen, were among the five rookies who received one vote each. Others were offensive tackle Ken Rice of the Buffalo Bills, linebacker Bob McLeod of the Houston Oilers and offensive tackle Charley Long of the Boston Patriots.

Fighter Breaks Hand

Houston, San Diego Place 12 On AFL All-Star Team

All Eight Clubs Represented In Selections By AP

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston and San Diego placed 12 of the 22 men selected for the All-Star team of the American Football League Thursday by an Associated Press poll of a committee of sports writers and sportscasters from the league's eight cities.

Houston's explosive unit had five men on the offensive team with quarterback George Blanda, halfback Billy Cannon, flanker back Charlie Hennigan, tackle Al Jamison and end Bill Groman. The Oilers also placed halfback Tony Banfield on the defensive team.

Mix Makes Squad

The San Diego Chargers, who meet Houston for the league championship Sunday at San Diego, had only tackle Ron Mix on the offensive unit but dominated the defensive club with ends Ron Nery and Earl Faison, tackle Ernie Ladd and backs Charlie McNeil and Nick Harris.

All eight clubs were represented with at least one man. New York and Denver placed three each and Dallas, Boston, Buffalo and Oakland one each.

The Titans, who recently signed Bulldog Turner to succeed Sammy Baugh as head coach, had fullback Bill Mathis and guard Bob Mischak on the offensive team and linebacker Larry Grantham on defense. The Denver Broncs placed Lionel Taylor, their fine pass catching end, and guard Ken Adamson on the attacking team and tackle Bud McFadin on the defensive club.

Blanda Choice Of Most

Oakland's only representative was center Jim Otto on offense. Linebackers Sherill Headrick of Dallas and Tom Addison of Boston and halfback Bill Atkins of Buffalo were the other members of the defensive team.

Blanda was the choice of all but one of the voters for the quarterback job. The other ballot went to Jack Kemp of San Diego. Blanda, 32-year-old former Chicago Bear, threw seven touchdown passes in the Nov. 19 game finished with 36 TD passes, using Hennigan, Groman and Cannon as his chief targets. Blanda finished with 3,340 yards, and scored 112 points on 16 field goals and 64 conversion kicks.

Cannon, playing his second year of pro ball after his great years at Louisiana State, led the league ground gainers with 948 yards and scored 15 touchdowns. Hennigan caught 12 TD passes and gained 1,746 yards on 82 catches.

Taylor of Denver caught a record 100 passes for 1,276 yards and Groman nabbed 18 touchdown tosses for the Oilers.

80, ONE COMPLAINT—Baseball's grand old man, Branch Rickey, marks his 80th birthday in Pittsburgh with one complaint: "They come so everlastingly regularly." Rickey, who has been in baseball nearly 60 years, warned that the sport was "on the wane" and that club owners "ultimately will have to go to a third league."

LaSalle Invades Fort Hill For 52nd Game Of Cage Series Tonight

Geatz's Team Unbeaten In Four Starts

LaSalle High School's Explorers, who have won outright or shared the city basketball championship the past four years, will meet Fort Hill's Sentinels tonight on the Fort Hill court in the fifty-second game of their series which had its inception in 1937.

This is the first of the city games this season and is expected to draw a large crowd to the Greenway Avenue court.

Sentinels Lead Series

The LaSalle-Fort Hill series is one of the most interesting in the tri-state area. The Sentinels now hold a 26-25 edge in victories but LaSalle has copped the last five games, including sweeps last season, 84-72 and 79-58, and in 1960, 52-50 and 65-46, and the last game of the 1959 set, 68-51.

LaSalle goes into tonight's game with a 4-0 record with victories over Fort Ashby, 71-64, Beall 59-44, Mt. Savage, 73-62, and Valley, 65-51. Fort Hill won the opener from Fort Ashby, 67-45 but dropped an 82-68 decision to powerful Martinsburg High School here Tuesday night.

The sharpshooters who will bear watching in tonight's encounter are Michael Long and Johnny Sloan, who have scored 100 and 77 points, respectively, for LaSalle, and Ronnie Manges and Pat Wilson who have collected 45 and 35 markers in the first two contests for Fort Hill.

The next city game is set for January 19 when Allegany hosts Fort Hill.

Northern Visits Bruce

Bruce High School's Bulldogs are scheduled to entertain the Northern High School Huskies tonight in Westernport. Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bulldogs will be making their fourth start of the season, having won two of three games played to date. Northern has split even in four outings.

Oldtown High School (2-3) is carded to play the Allegany High junior varsity at Campobello.

In other Friday night games, Romney High's Pioneers host the Alumni, Central High of Woodstock, Va., visits Mathias High School, Berlin-Brothersvalley tackles the Hyndman High Hornets at Hyndman and Hancock is slated to invade Berkeley Springs.

Cadets Play Waynesboro

Homer Brooks' undefeated Frederick Cadets entertain Waynesboro High School while Nick Scallion's Rebels of Southern Hagerstown High School play "Shad" Hunt's St. Maria Goretti High floormen on the latter's court in the Hub City.

Tomorrow night at Campobello, Coach Chet Payne's Allegany High Campers meet the Alumni quint.

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's always room at the top in the big town.

It's talent that counts and a guy can hit it big on his first shot no matter where he started out—say Lawrence, Kans., or a rundown neighborhood in Brooklyn.

Ralph Houk made it on his first try. So did Allie Sherman.

Out of Lawrence, came tough, cigar - smoking, war hero Houk to sit on the hottest managerial seat in baseball as successor to the fantastically successful Casey Stengel. Ralph won a world championhip for the New York Yankees in his rookie season.

And from a seedy section of Brooklyn, where football runs a poor third in popularity to base ball and basketball, came skinny Allie Sherman to lead the New York Giants into the National Football League's "world series" against the Green Bay Packers—also in his rookie season.

Big Town Demanding

The people who run the sports in the big town are demanding, because the customers are that way, too, but neither the Yankees nor the Giants were afraid to gamble with young men more or less untested under pressure.

And the gamble paid off — but big.

Houk was faced at the outset with two major problems, the Stengel reputation and a roster depleted by the American League's hasty expansion to 10 clubs for 1961.

"I'll do things my own way," he promised. And that he did.

He junked Casey's platoon system and came up with an everyday lineup. He took Whitey Ford out of the "spot pitcher" class and put him into a regular rotation that made Whitey a 20-plus winner for the first time. He also took away Yogi Berra's catcher's mask, put Yogi in the outfield, and made Elston Howard his No. 1 receiver.

Then came the sort of problem that could have wrecked a rookie manager as Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle became involved in an assault on Babe Ruth's home run record. Roger and Mickey naturally drew heavy publicity, much of it at the expense of other players who were delivering pennant-winning performances.

Refused To Take Sides

Houk refused to take sides in the personal duel between Roger and Mickey—"I hope they both break the record" — and he frequently drew attention to his other aces in an effort to keep the peace.

Out in Detroit, rookie manager Bob Scheffing was turning in a dandy job with the Tigers and wound up with the American League's manager - of - the - year award. But it was Houk who won the jackpots on the scoreboard.

Sherman, a brilliant but undersized quarterback in his day, actually was second choice as coach of the Giants, who had hoped to regain Vince Lombardi from the Packers when Giant coach Jim Lee Howell stepped out after last season.

Allie took a look at his roster, asked his front-office to trade for certain types and got what he wanted.

For awhile his situation looked desperate as the Giants blew their opener to the St. Louis Cardinals and struggled to down Pittsburgh and Washington with the heavy end of the schedule still to come.

However, those trades — particularly for quarterback Y.A. Tittle and end Del Shofner—began to pay off. The Giants came through and into the championship playoffs.

Rookie Of Year Honors In AFL Go To Faison

Chargers' Defensive End Is Named By UPI

By NORMAN MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Earl Faison, the San Diego Chargers' 256-pound defensive end who played most of the season in the opposing teams' backfield, Thursday was voted the 1961 American Football League rookie-of-the-year by United Press International.

Faison, a six-foot-four former University of Indiana star, was elected in a poll of three league writers from each city. He received 11 of the 24 votes cast, compared to 5 for tackle Ernie Ladd, his defensive linemate at San Diego.

In the opinion of the writers, the Chargers thus had the two best rookies in the AFL this season. Faison was San Diego's No. 1 choice in last year's draft. Earlier this week, he and Ladd were selected on the All-League team by the same panel of writers.

In sizing up Faison, Coach Sid Gillman of the Chargers said: "He has the intelligence, the strength, the speed and above all, he is almost sadistic on a football field."

But he was at his best when it came to rushing the passer.

Following Faison and Ladd in the voting came linebacker E. J. Holub of the Dallas Texans with 3 votes. Two other Chargers, fullback Keith Lincoln and linebacker Chuck Allen, were among the five rookies who received one vote each. Others were offensive tackle Ken Rice of the Buffalo Bills, linebacker Bob McLeod of the Houston Oilers and offensive tackle Charley Long of the Boston Patriots.

Houston, San Diego Place 12 On AFL All-Star Team

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston and San Diego placed 12 of the 22 men selected for the All-Star team of the American Football League Thursday by an Associated Press poll of a committee of sports writers and sportscasters from the league's eight cities.

Houston's explosive unit had five men on the offensive team with quarterback George Blanda, halfback Billy Cannon, flanker back Charlie Hennigan, tackle Al Jamison and end Bill Groman. The Oilers also placed halfback Tony Banfield on the defensive team.

Mix Makes Squad

The San Diego Chargers, who meet Houston for the league championship Sunday at San Diego, had only tackle Ron Mix on the offensive unit but dominated the defensive club with ends Ron Nery and Earl Faison, tackle Ernie Ladd and backs Charlie McNeil and Nick Harris.

All eight clubs were represented with at least one man. New York and Denver placed three each and Dallas, Boston, Buffalo and Oakland one each.

Blanda Choice Of Most

Oakland's only representative was center Jim Otto on offense. Linebackers Sherill Headrick of Dallas and Tom Addison of Boston and halfback Bill Atkins of Buffalo were the other members of the defensive team.

Blanda was the choice of all but one of the voters for the quarterback job. The other ballot went to Jack Kemp of San Diego. Blanda, 32-year-old former Chicago Bear, threw seven touchdown passes in the Nov. 19 game finished with 36 TD passes, using Hennigan, Groman and Cannon as his chief targets. Blanda finished with 3,340 yards, and scored 112 points on 16 field goals and 64 conversion kicks.

Cannon, playing his second year of pro ball after his great years at Louisiana State, led the league ground gainers with 948 yards and scored 15 touchdowns. Hennigan caught 12 TD passes and gained 1,746 yards on 82 catches.

Taylor of Denver caught a record 100 passes for 1,276 yards and Groman nabbed 18 touchdown tosses for the Oilers.

Ernie Davis To Sign Three-Year Pact With Cleveland For $80,000

Syracuse Ace Accepts Offer From Browns

Buffalo Club Had Offered More Cash To Negro Halfback

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ernie Davis, All-America halfback from Syracuse, has agreed to play with the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, Arthur Modell, chairman and chief executive officer of the Browns announced Thursday night.

Davis, this year's Heisman Trophy winner, is now in San Francisco working out with the East team for the East-West game Dec. 30 and the formal signing will take place there next week, Modell said.

THE Washington Redskins selected Davis as their first choice in the recent NFL draft. He also was drafted by the Buffalo Bills of the rival American Football League, who had made a concentrated effort to sign him to a contract.

Washington gave Cldveland the right to negotiate with Davis in exchange for Bobby Mitchell, a veteran halfback, and the rights to Leroy Jackson, speedy halfback from Western Illinois University who was a first-round draft choice of the Browns.

Modell said the Browns would pay Davis a total of $80,000 over a three-year period — a bonus of $15,000 and $65,000 in salary.

Davis, the first Negro ever to win the Heisman Trophy, broke all the rushing and scoring records set by Jimmy Brown, another All-America, at Syracuse and now becomes his teammate with the Browns.

Brown has been the top fullback in the NFL since his 1957 rookie season and this year won a record fifth straight league rushing title.

Anthony W. DeFilippo of Elmira, N.Y., long-time friend and adviser of Davis, approved acceptance of the Browns' offer although the Buffalo club had offered substantially more cash. Reports had placed the Buffalo offer at about $135,000.

Modell said there weren't words "to express my happiness now that Ernie has decided to play with us."

Liston's Hearing Will Be Continued

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Opposing counsel agreed Thursday to continuance of a hearing on a motion by heavyweight contender Charles (Sonny) Liston to enter a defense against a damage suit brought by Mrs. Dolores Ellis, 31.

Mrs. Ellis sought damages in excess of $5,000 for "mental stress and anguish" she allegedly suffered after Liston and a companion halted her car in Fairmount Park last summer. Criminal charges against Liston later were dismissed.

A hearing on Liston's petition had been scheduled before Judge Bernard Kelley but the boxer's lawyer, Harvey N. Schmidt, notified the clerk they had agreed to a continuance, with no new date set.

REHIRED — Weeb Ewbank, head coach of the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, had his three-year contract renewed yesterday after a meeting with Carroll Rosenbloom, president of the pro grid team. The 54-year-old Ewbank receives an estimated $30,000 per year and there had been speculation he might be released because of the declining fortunes of the former NFL champs.

Ewbank Is Retained As Colts' Coach

President Reports "Meeting Of Minds"

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Weeb Ewbank, whose coaching fortunes have slumped since his Baltimore Colts won the National Football League championships in 1958 and 1959, won a vote of confidence Thursday when his three-year contract was renewed.

Since he came to the Colts from the Cleveland Browns in 1964, the chubby, 54-year-old Ewbank has been working under a three-year contract which is self - renewing at the end of each season unless he is dismissed.

This assures him of two year of severance pay, estimated at $30,000 annually, in the event he is let go.

However, President Carroll Rosenbloom of the Colts settled all the speculation about whether Ewbank was to be retained or fired with Thursday's announcement.

Rosenbloom said that after a review of the past season, in which the Colts finished in a tie for third place in the Western Division, there had been "a meeting of the minds" and Ewbank's contract was renewed.

Ewbank won quick favor in Baltimore by building a winner after starting with limited material. His teams in 1958 and 1959 were NFL champions and there was even talk of a football dynasty in the making.

But that dream was shattered last year when the Colts staggered to a 6-6 finish.

Baltimore was a shaky starter this season, too, and speculation that Ewbank was through reached a peak as the club swung west for its two final games with the Los Angeles Rams and the San Francisco Forty-Niners. But the Colts displayed a fine finishing kick, overpowered the Forty-Niners despite injuries, and closed out the season with an 8-6 record.

Reds Sell Nunn To New York Mets

The 26-year-old Nunn relieved in 24 games for the National League champions last year. In 38 innings on the mound, he compiled a 2-1 record and had a 3.55 earned run average.

The Reds brought Nunn up from Jersey City after he finished the 1960 season there with a 12-6 record and an ERA of 1.93.

Russ Kemmerer To Be Minister

White Sox Hurler Accepted For Study

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UPI) — Chicago White Sox pitcher Russ Kemmerer said Thursday the Methodist Church has accepted him to begin study for the ministry.

"This is something I have wanted to do for a long time," Kemmerer told a reporter. The final decision, he said, came recently "when I received letters from two ministers urging me to become a minister."

The Methodist Church here, in a routine announcement, noted acceptance of Kemmerer and two other men for training towards a local preacher's license.

A local preacher's license is bestowed after a private study period of several weeks and the recipient becomes essentially an assistant to an ordained minister. A local preacher cannot, for example, perform services such as baptism and marriage.

Kemmerer said he plans to audit courses at Illinois Wesleyan University, a Methodist school here, before spring training and next fall embark on work towards ordination.

He said he'll play baseball and in the off-season go to school, "providing I continue playing baseball," he added.

The White Sox got Kemmerer, a right-hander who broke into professional baseball in 1951 in the Eastern League, from Washington last year. The 30-year-old native of Pittsburgh, Pa., moved to Bloomington near the end of the season.

AFL Title Game Set For Sunday At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The "home-and - home" championship playoffs for the American Football League championship shifts to this southern California gridiron hotbed Sunday when for the second straight year the Houston Oilers meet the San Diego Chargers.

The last time the club met for the championship, the Chargers were playing out of Los Angeles. But aside from that change, the script is the same.

Coach Sid Gillman of the Chargers was hopeful he could make one alteration — in the final score. When the clubs met for the AFL title in Houston, the Oilers pounded out a 24-16 victory.

Whether the Chargers have tailed off or let up to point for the championship game, San Diego has been unimpressive in recent games and as a result the Oilers were three-point favorites.

Houston caught fire after Wally Lemm succeeded Loy Rymkus as coach of the Oilers and won nine straight games, including a 33-13 win over the Chargers Dec. 3 at Houston.

Despite that loss and a 41-0 defeat by the Boston Patriots last Sunday, the Chargers finished the season with a 12-2 record after having made one of the strongest starts in pro football history.

In addition to the team conflict, there will be a battle of quarterbacks between Houston's veteran George Blanda and the Chargers Jack Kemp for individual passing honors. And there will be a fight for rushing honors between halfbacks Billy Cannon of the Oilers and Paul Lew of the Chargers.

Bearcats Rock Colorado, 84-67

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's basketball Bearcats rocked Colorado with a burst of machine-gun scoring in the first half and hustled up an 84-67 victory Thursday night.

The Bearcats, losers of a one-point decision last Monday after 27 straight triumphs, stacked up a 51-37 halftime edge with little trouble.

Cincinnati had only an 18-11 edge in the first half when sophs George Wilson and Ron Bonham came in. With 6-foot-9 Paul Hogue, they triggered a surge of 24 points to the Buffaloes' 9 in the next six minutes.

Colorado's Ken Charlton was the game's high scorer with 23 points. Hogue headed Cincinnati with 20 points.

Southern Bows To Grads 77-71

Ronnie Colaw's 24 Points Paces Alumni

Members of Southern High's District One Class A basketball champions returned last night as an Alumni aggregation and handed the Highlanders' varsity a 77-71 setback at Oakland. The loss was the fourth in five starts for Coach Carl Schoonover's schoolboy quintet.

Ronnie and Terry Colaw scored 38 points between them to pace the Alumni attack as the Grads overcame a 20-19 first-quarter deficit to go ahead 41-30 at halftime and lead the rest of the way. Third quarter score was 55-50 in favor of the victors.

DAVIS, W. Va. (UPI) — Two inches of snow was reported Thursday on Cabin Mountain and Weiss Knob near Davis, the state's major ski slopes, but a spokesman said more was needed to provide good skiing conditions this week end.

The two slopes were the only ones in the state where there appeared to be any possibility of enough snow for weekend skiing.

Lemm Overwhelmed After Being Named AFL Coach Of Year

By CHARLES GREEN

HOUSTON (AP)—Wally Lemm, voted American Football League coach of the year by an Associated Press committee of sportswriters and sportscasters, said Thursday he feels he was lucky to get the Houston job.

"I'm overwhelmed," Lemm said when told the committee from eight league cities made him a near unanimous choice.

"I was real lucky to fall into this job with all the material that Houston has," he said. "It was a great break for me. I feel so many other coaches — Mike Holovak, Sid Gillman and others deserve this more than I do."

Lemm who took over the sagging Houston Oilers Oct. 16 after they won one game in five starts, guided them from the bottom to the top of the Eastern Division with nine straight wins.

The Oilers meet San Diego Sunday in the AFL title game — something that looked very remote two months ago in the days before Lemm.

Ernie Davis To Sign Three-Year Pact With Cleveland For $80,000

Syracuse Ace Accepts Offer From Browns

Buffalo Club Had Offered More Cash To Negro Halfback

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ernie Davis, All-America halfback from Syracuse, has agreed to play with the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, Arthur Modell, chairman and chief executive officer of the Browns announced Thursday night.

Davis, this year's Heisman Trophy winner, is now in San Francisco working out with the East team for the East-West game Dec. 30 and the formal signing will take place there next week, Modell said.

THE Washington Redskins selected Davis as their first choice in the recent NFL draft. He also was drafted by the Buffalo Bills of the rival American Football League, who had made a concentrated effort to sign him to a contract.

Washington gave Cldveland the right to negotiate with Davis in exchange for Bobby Mitchell, a veteran halfback, and the rights to Leroy Jackson, speedy halfback from Western Illinois University who was a first-round draft choice of the Browns.

Modell said the Browns would pay Davis a total of $80,000 over a three-year period — a bonus of $15,000 and $65,000 in salary.

Davis, the first Negro ever to win the Heisman Trophy, broke all the rushing and scoring records set by Jimmy Brown, another All-America, at Syracuse and now becomes his teammate with the Browns.

Brown has been the top fullback in the NFL since his 1957 rookie season and this year won a record fifth straight league rushing title.

Anthony W. DeFilippo of Elmira, N.Y., long-time friend and adviser of Davis, approved acceptance of the Browns' offer although the Buffalo club had offered substantially more cash. Reports had placed the Buffalo offer at about $135,000.

Modell said there weren't words "to express my happiness now that Ernie has decided to play with us."

Liston's Hearing Will Be Continued

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Opposing counsel agreed Thursday to continuance of a hearing on a motion by heavyweight contender Charles (Sonny) Liston to enter a defense against a damage suit brought by Mrs. Dolores Ellis, 31.

Mrs. Ellis sought damages in excess of $5,000 for "mental stress and anguish" she allegedly suffered after Liston and a companion halted her car in Fairmount Park last summer. Criminal charges against Liston later were dismissed.

A hearing on Liston's petition had been scheduled before Judge Bernard Kelley but the boxer's lawyer, Harvey N. Schmidt, notified the clerk they had agreed to a continuance, with no new date set.

REHIRED — Weeb Ewbank, head coach of the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, had his three-year contract renewed yesterday after a meeting with Carroll Rosenbloom, president of the pro grid team. The 54-year-old Ewbank receives an estimated $30,000 per year and there had been speculation he might be released because of the declining fortunes of the former NFL champs.

Ewbank Is Retained As Colts' Coach

President Reports "Meeting Of Minds"

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Weeb Ewbank, whose coaching fortunes have slumped since his Baltimore Colts won the National Football League championships in 1958 and 1959, won a vote of confidence Thursday when his three-year contract was renewed.

Since he came to the Colts from the Cleveland Browns in 1954, the chubby, 54-year-old Ewbank has been working under a three-year contract which is self - renewing at the end of each season unless he is dismissed.

This assures him of two year of severance pay, estimated at $30,000 annually, in the event he is let go.

However, President Carroll Rosenbloom of the Colts settled all the speculation about whether Ewbank was to be retained or fired with Thursday's announcement.

Rosenbloom said that after a review of the past season, in which the Colts finished in a tie for third place in the Western Division, there had been "a meeting of the minds" and Ewbank's contract was renewed.

Ewbank won quick favor in Baltimore by building a winner after starting with limited material. His teams in 1958 and 1959 were NFL champions and there was even talk of a football dynasty in the making.

But that dream was shattered last year when the Colts staggered to a 6-6 finish.

Baltimore was a shaky starter this season, too, and speculation that Ewbank was through reached a peak as the club swung west for its two final games with the Los Angeles Rams and the San Francisco Forty-Niners. But the Colts displayed a fine finishing kick, overpowered the Forty-Niners despite injuries, and closed out the season with an 8-6 record.

Reds Sell Nunn To New York Mets

The 26-year-old Nunn relieved in 24 games for the National League champions last year. In 38 innings on the mound, he compiled a 2-1 record and had a 3.55 earned run average.

The Reds brought Nunn up from Jersey City after he finished the 1960 season there with a 12-6 record and an ERA of 1.93.

Russ Kemmerer To Be Minister

White Sox Hurler Accepted For Study

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UPI) — Chicago White Sox pitcher Russ Kemmerer said Thursday the Methodist Church has accepted him to begin study for the ministry.

"This is something I have wanted to do for a long time," Kemmerer told a reporter. The final decision, he said, came recently "when I received letters from two ministers urging me to become a minister."

The Methodist Church here, in a routine announcement, noted acceptance of Kemmerer and two other men for training towards a local preacher's license.

A local preacher's license is bestowed after a private study period of several weeks and the recipient becomes essentially an assistant to an ordained minister. A local preacher cannot, for example, perform services such as baptism and marriage.

Kemmerer said he plans to audit courses at Illinois Wesleyan University, a Methodist school here, before spring training and next fall embark on work towards ordination.

He said he'll play baseball and in the off-season go to school, "providing I continue playing baseball," he added.

The White Sox got Kemmerer, a right-hander who broke into professional baseball in 1951 in the Eastern League, from Washington last year. The 30-year-old native of Pittsburgh, Pa., moved to Bloomington near the end of the season.

AFL Title Game Set For Sunday At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The "home-and - home" championship playoffs for the American Football League championship shifts to this southern California gridiron hotbed Sunday when for the second straight year the Houston Oilers meet the San Diego Chargers.

The last time the club met for the championship, the Chargers were playing out of Los Angeles. But aside from that change, the script is the same.

Coach Sid Gillman of the Chargers was hopeful he could make one alteration — in the final score. When the clubs met for the AFL title in Houston, the Oilers pounded out a 24-16 victory.

Whether the Chargers have tailed off or let up to point for the championship game, San Diego has been unimpressive in recent games and as a result the Oilers were three-point favorites.

Houston caught fire after Wally Lemm succeeded Loy Rymkus as coach of the Oilers and won nine straight games, including a 33-13 win over the Chargers Dec. 3 at Houston.

Despite that loss and a 41-0 defeat by the Boston Patriots last Sunday, the Chargers finished the season with a 12-2 record after having made one of the strongest starts in pro football history.

In addition to the team conflict, there will be a battle of quarterbacks between Houston's veteran George Blanda and the Chargers Jack Kemp for individual passing honors. And there will be a fight for rushing honors between halfbacks Billy Cannon of the Oilers and Paul Lew of the Chargers.

Bearcats Rock Colorado, 84-67

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's basketball Bearcats rocked Colorado with a burst of machine-gun scoring in the first half and hustled up an 84-67 victory Thursday night.

The Bearcats, losers of a one-point decision last Monday after 27 straight triumphs, stacked up a 51-37 halftime edge with little trouble.

Cincinnati had only an 18-11 edge in the first half when sophs George Wilson and Ron Bonham came in. With 6-foot-9 Paul Hogue, they triggered a surge of 24 points to the Buffaloes' 9 in the next six minutes.

Colorado's Ken Charlton was the game's high scorer with 23 points. Hogue headed Cincinnati with 20 points.

Southern Bows To Grads 77-71

Ronnie Colaw's 24 Points Paces Alumni

Members of Southern High's District One Class A basketball champions returned last night as an Alumni aggregation and handed the Highlanders' varsity a 77-71 setback at Oakland. The loss was the fourth in five starts for Coach Carl Schoonover's schoolboy quintet.

Ronnie and Terry Colaw scored 38 points between them to pace the Alumni attack as the Grads overcame a 20-19 first-quarter deficit to go ahead 41-30 at halftime and lead the rest of the way. Third quarter score was 55-50 in favor of the victors.

Gonder topped Southern's scorers with 16 points, followed closely by Lawton and Burdock with 13 apiece. Ronnie Colaw had 24 tallies and Terry Colaw, 14, for the Grads.

More Snow Needed For Good Skiing

DAVIS, W. Va. (UPI) — Two inches of snow was reported Thursday on Cabin Mountain and Weiss Knob near Davis, the state's major ski slopes, but a spokesman said more was needed to provide good skiing conditions this week end.

The two slopes were the only ones in the state where there appeared to be any possibility of enough snow for weekend skiing.

Lemm Overwhelmed After Being Named AFL Coach Of Year

By CHARLES GREEN

HOUSTON (AP)—Wally Lemm, voted American Football League coach of the year by an Associated Press committee of sportswriters and sportscasters, said Thursday he feels he was lucky to get the Houston job.

"I'm overwhelmed," Lemm said when told the committee from eight league cities made him a near unanimous choice.

"I was real lucky to fall into this job with all the material that Houston has," he said. "It was a great break for me. I feel so many other coaches — Mike Holovak, Sid Gillman and others deserve this more than I do."

Lemm who took over the sagging Houston Oilers Oct. 16 after they won one game in five starts, guided them from the bottom to the top of the Eastern Division with nine straight wins.

The Oilers meet San Diego Sunday in the AFL title game — something that looked very remote two months ago in the days before Lemm.

Roman Gabriel Denies He Will Receive $50,000

Says Oakland Never Offered Him $30,000

By HAL WOOD
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Quarterback Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State said Thursday that reports he would receive $50,000 a year from the Los Angeles Rams were definitely not true.

"Whoever started that talk has it all wrong," said Gabriel, who is here to play for the East in the 37th annual Shrine classic.

"I've never received that kind of an offer from anybody. And other reports have been exaggerated, too."

"First off," said the towering signal-caller, "the report that the Oakland Raiders offered me around $30,000 a year to play for them is just not true. Let's say they didn't come within $10,000 or $15,000 of offering me that much. I talked to their general manager, Wes Fry, before the draft. But after the official draft, the Raiders didn't even contact me."

"When I was about to sign with the Rams, I called them and they didn't appear ready to meet the Rams offer. So that ended it. Then I heard they tried to trade me to the Dallas Texans. Maybe they did. I understand that Lamar Hunt says he talked to me and that I turned his bid down. Maybe he thought he talked to me, but he never did. In fact, by the time he supposedly called me I already had signed with the Rams."

Meanwhile, head coaches Joe Kuharich of the East and Jim Owens of the West toned down their threats to ban professional scouts from their training camps.

"We decided to hold open practice sessions," said Kuharich. "Anybody can come to these. But we have asked the scouts not to come on the field and not bother the players before 7 p.m. They can talk to them after 7 p.m. until 9 or 10 p.m., if the players wish."

However, Ernie Davis, the All-America halfback from Syracuse, said he didn't expect to have any trouble with the scouts.

"I talked with men from both Cleveland and Buffalo before I left the east," said Davis. "I don't think men from either club will come out here to see me. I haven't made up my mind yet about which club I'll play with."

Husky Gridders Pay Visit To Crippled Tots

Joy, Tears Mingle At Shrine Benefit

By HARRY JUPITER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Quiet, now," said the nurse. "They're coming in."

There wasn't a sound from the children as the husky young men walked into the ward, single file, striding softly.

Then a kid named Peter shouted:

"Hey, McClinton, what's keeping ya?"

Curtis McClinton, a 220-pound halfback from Kansas, broke into a broad grin and shook hands with 7½-year-old Peter.

Most of the children at the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children were shy when the East and West football squads arrived Thursday to visit the youngsters who benefit from the annual game at Kezar Stadium Dec. 30.

Ernie Davis of Syracuse, All-America halfback voted the Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding football player, brought a camera. He was a hit with the little girls, taking their pictures and posing with them.

Most of the players were assigned to youngsters. When they ran out of players, they shared 'em.

That did it. They chatted and gossiped and laughed, the burly football player and the slender girl.

Bill Triplett, a fullback from Miami of Ohio, was brought to a nurse holding Michael, 1½ chubby and blue eyed. One of Michael's legs is almost 10 inches shorter than the other.

"Go ahead and grab him," the nurse told Triplett, "You won't hurt him."

Triplett did. Michael hugged Triplett. Boy, did they hit it off. When Fate Echols, a 251-pound tackle from Northwestern, wanted to hold Mike, the child looked at Triplett. Triplett nodded and Mike went into Echols' arms, the tenderest tackle big Fate ever made.

The All-Americas were there. The coaches were there, and the wives of the married players were there.

"I wanna see Bob Ferguson," said one lad. A minute later, the bruising fullback from Ohio State was there, holding a tiny hand.

An all conference lineman, eased out a door, took out a handkerchief and blew his nose. He looked up and noticed a reporter standing next to him, wiping his glasses. They looked at one another and returned to those crippled, wonderful kids.

Antlerless Deer Season Set For Twelve Counties

To Open Thursday, Maryland Issues 11,200 Permits

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Residents of 12 Maryland counties, and a few outsiders, will take to the woods Dec. 28-30 for a special antlerless deer season.

Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Game and Inland Fish Department, said Thursday conditions point to a record kill. There were 11,200 special permits authorized this year, 3,300 more than last year, and all are expected to be taken before Saturday.

A heavy demand for permits was being experienced Thursday at courthouses of the four lower Eastern Shore counties, which were the only ones with permits left for hunters on a statewide basis. First call is given to residents and landowners in all the counties, and Allegany and Washington restrict their's entirely to the homefolks.

The permits were authorized as follows: Cecil 400, Queen Annes 400, Caroline 400, Charles 400, Kent 600, Talbot 400, Wicomico 1,000, Worcester 3,000, Somerset 1,000, Dorchester 2,000, Washington 800, Allegany 800.

Mathias gave the visitors a battle for two periods, leading 33-29 at halftime, but Central came back with 50 points in the second half to win the game going away.

Don Keller led the scoring parade for Central with 26 points, 16 of them in the third quarter when the victors rallied to go ahead. Ed Mongold with 18 and Steve Taylor with 17 were Mathias' high scorers.

Commies Clobber Defecting Ducks

Unaware of travel restrictions behind the Iron Curtain, capitalist waterfowl have invaded the Soviet Union. Return of their ID numbers to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service testifies to their unhappy end.

"Through an interchange of banding information, U. S. and Soviet scientists have compared notes on the wayward wandering of their respective flocks," says Remington's Research Bureau.

"Snow geese are fairly frequent travelers to Russia and returns have been reported on 24 birds banded in this country. Pintails are among the most foot-loose. The U.S.S.R. Acamedy of Sciences has reported recovery of 121 individuals banded in U. S. Other pintails are known to move between continental U. S. and Hawaii.

And one bird banded in the newest state in 1954 flew all the way to Siberia—just to get shot in 1960. And knowing pintails, it probably got there by way of Manila, Melbourne and West Berlin."

Editorialist Cops Tropical Park Feature

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP) — Fourth Estate's heavily-favored Editorialist made an impressive debut today when he galloped to an easy victory in the featured sixth race at Tropical Park before a crowd of 6,791.

Rulamyth was second, with Trial Balloon third and Short Span, an entry with Rulamyth, finishing fourth.

Editorialist, who had not been out since Oct. 4, went to the lead immediately after the break and never was headed. Profit or Loss was in closest pursuit to the far turn, then stopped badly as Rulamyth add Trial Balloon moved up to make ineffectual challenges.

Editorialist turned for home with a three-length lead and went under the wire four in front. Rulamyth was 1¼ lengths in front of Trial Balloon for second money.

The winner, ridden by Bobby Nono, ran six furlongs in 1:10 and paid $4.50, 3.40 and $2.50. Rulamyth paid $5 and $3; Trial Balloon paid $3.20 to show.

Editorialist, a 3-year-old gelded son of Olympia, has won three of 14 starts. He finished second to Globemaster in the Arlington Classic, and also second to Beau Prince in the American Derby.

Syracuse To Allow Barnett To Play; Sears Case Settled

NEW YORK (AP)—The Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball Association agreed Thursday to allow Dick Barnett to play with the Cleveland Pipers of the rival American Basketball League.

The agreement between the two clubs was reached only a few hours after a Cleveland judge handed down a court order barring Barnett from competing with the Pipers.

A spokesman for the NBA said the two clubs reached an "amicable settlement" over the matter, but declined to specify terms of the agreement.

At the same time, the spokesman announced the New York Knicks of the NBA and San Francisco's ABL team had reached an agreement over Kenny Sears, now playing with San Francisco. Presumably, both were cash settlements.

A federal judge rejected a request by the Knicks last June that Sears be permanently restricted from playing with San Francisco. Sears had a damage suit pending against the Knicks, charging violation of the Anti-trust Act. The spokesman did not spell out terms of the New York-San Francisco agreement.

Mt. Savage Tops Alumni, 85-55

Robertson, Wilson Score 52 Points

With Bobby Robertson and Ralph Wilson scoring 52 points between them to lead the attack, Mt. Savage High's Indians defeated an Alumni quint, 85-55, last night for their fourth win of the campaign.

The schoolboy tossers jumped in front in the first quarter and led all the way, holding leads of 30 points or better most of the second half.

Roman Gabriel Denies He Will Receive $50,000

Says Oakland Never Offered Him $30,000

By HAL WOOD
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Quarterback Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State said Thursday that reports he would receive $50,000 a year from the Los Angeles Rams were definitely not true.

"Whoever started that talk has it all wrong," said Gabriel, who is here to play for the East in the 37th annual Shrine classic.

"I've never received that kind of an offer from anybody. And other reports have been exaggerated, too."

"First off," said the towering signal-caller, "the report that the Oakland Raiders offered me around $30,000 a year to play for them is just not true. Let's say they didn't come within $10,000 or $15,000 of offering me that much. I talked to their general manager, Wes Fry, before the draft. But after the official draft, the Raiders didn't even contact me."

"When I was about to sign with the Rams, I called them and they didn't appear ready to meet the Rams offer. So that ended it. Then I heard they tried to trade me to the Dallas Texans. Maybe they did. I understand that Lamar Hunt says he talked to me and that I turned his bid down. Maybe he thought he talked to me, but he never did. In fact, by the time he supposedly called me I already had signed with the Rams."

Meanwhile, head coaches Joe Kuharich of the East and Jim Owens of the West toned down their threats to ban professional scouts from their training camps.

"We decided to hold open practice sessions," said Kuharich. "Anybody can come to these. But we have asked the scouts not to come on the field and not bother the players before 7 p.m. They can talk to them after 7 p.m. until 9 or 10 p.m., if the players wish."

However, Ernie Davis, the All-America halfback from Syracuse, said he didn't expect to have any trouble with the scouts.

"I talked with men from both Cleveland and Buffalo before I left the east," said Davis. "I don't think men from either club will come out here to see me. I haven't made up my mind yet about which club I'll play with."

Husky Gridders Pay Visit To Crippled Tots

By HARRY JUPITER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Quiet, now," said the nurse. "They're coming in."

There wasn't a sound from the children as the husky young men walked into the ward, single file, striding softly.

Then a kid named Peter shouted:

"Hey, McClinton, what's keeping ya?"

Most of the children at the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children were shy when the East and West football squads arrived Thursday to visit the youngsters who benefit from the annual game at Kezar Stadium Dec. 30.

Ernie Davis of Syracuse, All-America halfback voted the Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding football player, brought a camera. He was a hit with the little girls, taking their pictures and posing with them.

Most of the players were assigned to youngsters. When they ran out of players, they shared 'em.

That did it. They chatted and gossiped and laughed, the burly football player and the slender girl.

Bill Triplett, a fullback from Miami of Ohio, was brought to a nurse holding Michael, 1½ chubby and blue eyed. One of Michael's legs is almost 10 inches shorter than the other.

"Go ahead and grab him," the nurse told Triplett, "You won't hurt him."

Triplett did. Michael hugged Triplett. Boy, did they hit it off. When Fate Echols, a 251-pound tackle from Northwestern, wanted to hold Mike, the child looked at Triplett. Triplett nodded and Mike went into Echols' arms, the tenderest tackle big Fate ever made.

The All-Americas were there. The coaches were there, and the wives of the married players were there.

"I wanna see Bob Ferguson," said one lad. A minute later, the bruising fullback from Ohio State was there, holding a tiny hand.

An all conference lineman, eased out a door, took out a handkerchief and blew his nose. He looked up and noticed a reporter standing next to him, wiping his glasses. They looked at one another and returned to those crippled, wonderful kids.

Antlerless Deer Season Set For Twelve Counties

To Open Thursday, Maryland Issues 11,200 Permits

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Residents of 12 Maryland counties, and a few outsiders, will take to the woods Dec. 28-30 for a special antlerless deer season.

Ernest A. Vaughn, director of the Game and Inland Fish Department, said Thursday conditions point to a record kill. There were 11,200 special permits authorized this year, 3,300 more than last year, and all are expected to be taken before Saturday.

A heavy demand for permits was being experienced Thursday at courthouses of the four lower Eastern Shore counties, which were the only ones with permits left for hunters on a statewide basis. First call is given to residents and landowners in all the counties, and Allegany and Washington restrict their's entirely to the homefolks.

The permits were authorized as follows: Cecil 400, Queen Annes 400, Caroline 400, Charles 400, Kent 600, Talbot 400, Wicomico 1,000, Worcester 3,000, Somerset 1,000, Dorchester 2,000, Washington 800, Allegany 800.

Commies Clobber Defecting Ducks

Unaware of travel restrictions behind the Iron Curtain, capitalist waterfowl have invaded the Soviet Union. Return of their ID numbers to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service testifies to their unhappy end.

"Through an interchange of banding information, U. S. and Soviet scientists have compared notes on the wayward wandering of their respective flocks," says Remington's Research Bureau.

"Snow geese are fairly frequent travelers to Russia and returns have been reported on 24 birds banded in this country. Pintails are among the most foot-loose. The U.S.S.R. Acamedy of Sciences has reported recovery of 121 individuals banded in U. S. Other pintails are known to move between continental U. S. and Hawaii.

And one bird banded in the newest state in 1954 flew all the way to Siberia—just to get shot in 1960. And knowing pintails, it probably got there by way of Manila, Melbourne and West Berlin."

Editorialist Cops Tropical Park Feature

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP) — Fourth Estate's heavily-favored Editorialist made an impressive debut today when he galloped to an easy victory in the featured sixth race at Tropical Park before a crowd of 6,791.

Rulamyth was second, with Trial Balloon third and Short Span, an entry with Rulamyth, finishing fourth.

Editorialist, who had not been out since Oct. 4, went to the lead immediately after the break and never was headed. Profit or Loss was in closest pursuit to the far turn, then stopped badly as Rulamyth add Trial Balloon moved up to make ineffectual challenges.

Editorialist turned for home with a three-length lead and went under the wire four in front. Rulamyth was 1¼ lengths in front of Trial Balloon for second money.

The winner, ridden by Bobby Nono, ran six furlongs in 1:10 and paid $4.50, 3.40 and $2.50. Rulamyth paid $5 and $3; Trial Balloon paid $3.20 to show.

Editorialist, a 3-year-old gelded son of Olympia, has won three of 14 starts. He finished second to Globemaster in the Arlington Classic, and also second to Beau Prince in the American Derby.

Syracuse To Allow Barnett To Play; Sears Case Settled

NEW YORK (AP)—The Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball Association agreed Thursday to allow Dick Barnett to play with the Cleveland Pipers of the rival American Basketball League.

The agreement between the two clubs was reached only a few hours after a Cleveland judge handed down a court order barring Barnett from competing with the Pipers.

A spokesman for the NBA said the two clubs reached an "amicable settlement" over the matter, but declined to specify terms of the agreement.

At the same time, the spokesman announced the New York Knicks of the NBA and San Francisco's ABL team had reached an agreement over Kenny Sears, now playing with San Francisco. Presumably, both were cash settlements.

A federal judge rejected a request by the Knicks last June that Sears be permanently restricted from playing with San Francisco. Sears had a damage suit pending against the Knicks, charging violation of the Anti-trust Act. The spokesman did not spell out terms of the New York-San Francisco agreement.

It is untrue that the ostrich hides its head in the sand when confronted by danger. It kicks viciously when cornered or wounded.

Selloff In Utilities Marks Easier And Quiet Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Another selloff in the utilities featured an easier and relatively quiet pre-Christmas stock market Thursday.

Trading slipped to 3,440,000 shares from 3,640,000 in the prior session with 1,290 issues traded, the least since Oct. 31. Of these, 439 advanced, 15 to new highs, and 582 declined, 14 to new lows.

The Dow-Jones utility average lost 0.81, bringing it to the lowest level since Oct. 18. Public Service Electric & Gas showed independent strength with a gain of 2⅜ but Southern Cal Edison, Pacific Gas, Houston Lighting and Detroit Edison dipped well over a point and some issues outside the averages fell even more sharply.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 2.47 to 720.10, the main pressure stemming from declines of 1¾ in Eastman Kodak, 1⅛ in General Electric, 1 in General Foods and ⅞ in Texaco.

In general, the leading steels, autos, chemicals and international oils were narrow. Exceptions were Ford up a point, still responding to news of its development of a sub-compact car, and National Steel ahead 4⅛ on news of its plans for a 2-for-1 stock split and the issuance of 1,500,000 additional shares to stockholders.

Aluminium Ltd. took top honors in the most active list with a gain of ¼ on 49,500 shares. It was followed by General Telephone off ⅛, Magnavox down 1¼, Minerals & Chemicals off ¼ and General Motors off ⅜.

Selloff In Utilities Marks Easier And Quiet Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Another selloff in the utilities featured an easier and relatively quiet pre-Christmas stock market Thursday.

Trading slipped to 3,440,000 shares from 3,640,000 in the prior session with 1,290 issues traded, the least since Oct. 31. Of these, 439 advanced, 15 to new highs, and 582 declined, 14 to new lows.

The Dow-Jones utility average lost 0.81, bringing it to the lowest level since Oct. 18. Public Service Electric & Gas showed independent strength with a gain of 2⅜ but Southern Cal Edison, Pacific Gas, Houston Lighting and Detroit Edison dipped well over a point and some issues outside the averages fell even more sharply.

Standard & Poor's comprehensive 500 stock index lost 0.26 indicating an aggregate decline of around $1.8 billion in paper values during the session.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 2.47 to 720.10, the main pressure stemming from declines of 1¾ in Eastman Kodak, 1⅛ in General Electric, 1 in General Foods and ⅞ in Texaco.

In general, the leading steels, autos, chemicals and international oils were narrow. Exceptions were Ford up a point, still responding to news of its development of a sub-compact car, and National Steel ahead 4⅛ on news of its plans for a 2-for-1 stock split and the issuance of 1,500,000 additional shares to stockholders.

Aluminium Ltd. took top honors in the most active list with a gain of ¼ on 49,500 shares. It was followed by General Telephone off ⅞, Magnavox down 1¼, Minerals & Chemicals off ¼ and General Motors off ⅜.

Martinsburg Must Clean-Up Tuscarora Ck.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The city of Martinsburg was ordered Wednesday by the State Water Resources Board to stop polluting Tuscarora Creek with sewage.

The city was given 30 days to inform the board whether it will comply with the order and what steps have been taken, or whether it will appeal to circuit court.

Bern Wright, executive secretary of the board, said the Eastern Panhandle city has a sewage system dating back to around World War 1. The treatment plant is overloaded due to increased population and new industry in the area.

He said the creek is a small, slow-moving stream unable to carry off wastes fast enough, creating a more severe pollution problem.

Wright said the city has plans for a new system to cost between $800,000 to $1 million. Some of the money for the proposed system may come from federal funds under the Water Pollution Control Act.

Martinsburg Must Clean-Up Tuscarora Ck.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The city of Martinsburg was ordered Wednesday by the State Water Resources Board to stop polluting Tuscarora Creek with sewage.

The city was given 30 days to inform the board whether it will comply with the order and what steps have been taken, or whether it will appeal to circuit court.

Bern Wright, executive secretary of the board, said the Eastern Panhandle city has a sewage system dating back to around World War 1. The treatment plant is overloaded due to increased population and new industry in the area.

He said the creek is a small, slow-moving stream unable to carry off wastes fast enough, creating a more severe pollution problem.

Wright said the city has plans for a new system to cost between $800,000 to $1 million. Some of the money for the proposed system may come from federal funds under the Water Pollution Control Act.

The contract, which was signed last night, will be in effect until at least July 1 next year and the fee for Mr. Tarrant's services will be $10,000.

Deductions Likely

However, it was pointed out at the meeting that any work that C. Lee Renaud, county planning director, does in connection with stipulations of the contract will be deducted from the consultant's fee.

The original contract signed with the firm noted that $18,000 would be paid. All but $4,500 of the total has been paid, said the commissioners.

The program, as originally set up, called for the expenditure of $40,000 over a period of from two and a half to three years, during which time a comprehensive master plan and zoning ordinance would be completed for the county.

One spokesman said that approximately 40 per cent of the work has been completed including most of the work on a major road plan, expressway integration and a traffic study.

Included in the contract inked last night are compiling data on such phases as recommended highway and road cross sections, railroad grade crossings, airfields and airports, plan of school facilities and recreation areas and subdivision regulations.

Belt Motion

The motion for renewal of the existing contract was made by Carl O. Belt and seconded by Ralph M. Race, both of whom stipulated the contract be carried out in accordance with terms as set up in the original plan.

Later in the meeting Mr. Renaud referred to a letter from Richard A. Gucker, chief of the Planning Department of Maryland, in reference to getting the county planning unit included in the federal government's 701 program.

Aerial Photos Needed

He explained that the County Sanitary Commission is going to require aerial photos of Bowling Green and Cresaptown as part of its program of planning and the county planning and zoning unit might tie in with the unit to get government funds.

Sheriff Gets Yule Greetings From Inmates

Being locked behind bars of a jail doesn't necessarily keep prisoners from wishing others Yuletide greetings.

Earlier this week a folded card with the first initial and last name of 12 prisoners in Allegany County Jail was delivered to Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein.

Bishop Walsh Faces Bleak Christmas In Red Prison

By ROY ESSOYAN

HONG KONG (AP)—A small Christmas pudding, a handful of dates and a few cards from home will provide the only Christmas cheer for four American prisoners still held in Red China.

There will be nothing else to set Christmas off from the thousands of dreary, lonely days they have served and have yet to serve in Chinese Communist jails.

This is the story, based on the best available information:

The four American prisoners, 31 to 70 years old, will clean their cells Christmas morning. That is the only work assigned to them. They will be taken out to exercise for two half-hour periods during the day. The rest of the time they will spend in their silent cells.

This is the 11th Christmas behind Chinese Communist bars for Hugh F. Redmond Jr., of Yonkers, N.Y.; 43, a businessman serving a life term in a Shanghai prison on unspecified Communist charges of espionage.

It is the 10th Christmas in jail for John T. Downey, 31, of New Britain, Conn.; and Richard Fecteau, 34, of Lynn, Mass., Army civilian employes jailed in Peiping on similar charges.

Downey is serving a life term and Fecteau has completed half his 20-year sentence.

Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh of Cumberland, Md., was sentenced three years ago to 20 years' imprisonment. At 70, he has little expectation of leaving his jail alive.

Visited By Brother

His brother, William C. Walsh, former attorney general of Maryland, visited him last year. The bishop's last words before they parted were, "We will meet in heaven."

There were five American prisoners in China last Christmas but Robert McCann of Pasadena, Calif., was released on the point of death in April after he had served two-thirds of a 15-year sentence on espionage charges. McCann died a month later.

Downey still lives in hope he will not serve out his life term in

Food Baskets Distributed By CUF Unit

200 Families Be Remembered

The Associated Charities today will complete the distribution of about 200 food baskets to needy families of this area.

Miss Jeannette Bonig, executive secretary, said about half of the baskets were distributed by city trucks yesterday and that the other boxes or baskets will go out this morning.

The basket distribution was made possible by gifts of food or money by a number of organizations, including the Elks, American Legion and Auxiliary, 40 & 8 Club and Allegany High School, and a number of individuals who ask the CUF agency to distribute their Christmas gifts to the needy.

Miss Bonig said every effort has been made by the Associated Charities to see that all who are in need were remembered at Christmas, and that applications were checked with other agencies to make sure there was no duplication.

During recent days, the Associated Charities has distributed some 10,000 toys to about 164 families of the Cumberland area.

Every effort was made to see that every child received at least one large toy he wanted, plus a number of smaller toys.

Wilkinson Seen Filling Tawes Slate

Announcement Expected Later

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Perry O. Wilkinson, a candidate for congressman-at-large in the Democratic primary, said Thursday he would be delighted to run on the ticket headed by Gov. Tawes.

A spokesman for the Maryland Democratic organization said earlier in the day the congressman-at-large vacancy on the Tawes ticket would be filled by Wilkinson within 10 days.

The 56-year-old speaker of the House of Delegates said he also had learned from sources close to the governor that he would be named about the first of next month.

"I would be delighted to work with such capable public servants as the governor, Tom Finan, Louis Goldstein and Dan Brewster," said Wilkinson, a member of the House since 1943.

In addition to Tawes, the ticket includes Atty. Gen. Finan, Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, and Rep. Daniel Brewster, who is running for U.S. Senator.

Wilkinson said he understands an announcement of his choice for the congressman's post on the Tawes slate will be made when Herbert R. O'Conor Jr. officially takes over as campaign chairman in early January.

O'Conor, son of the late former governor, himself had been a candidate for the office. He dropped out of the race two weeks ago, and subsequently was named statewide chairman for the ticket.

Wilkinson was endorsed recently by the Prince Georges County Democratic organization headed by Lansadale G. Sasscer, former congressman from Maryland's 5th district.

The only other Democratic candidate in the congressman-at-large race is Del. Carlton R. Sickles, also of Prince Georges County.

Sickles has been endorsed by an organization which calls itself "a group of free, unbossed Democrats dedicated to bringing long overdue reforms to the county government." He has not aligned himself with the group, however.

The at-large status of the office sought by Wilkinson and Sickles developed after the 1961 General Assembly created Maryland's new 8th congressional district from Prince Georges and Howard counties.

A strengthened Merit System law to protect rights of employes with a formal grievance procedure.

A 40 hour work week for all state employes, with time and a half for overtime.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage paid by the state, according to the Maryland Organizing Committee of the union.

An art course and an insurance course will be offered during the second semester at the local college.

Much interest has been shown in the insurance course, according to Zimmer, who said it has been approved by the Maryland Commissioner of Insurance, and is a prerequisite for taking the Maryland Insurance Licensing examination.

The college president said the new course will have six hours college credit and will apply toward a transfer to schools of business or commerce.

Henry K. Duke, local insurance man, affiliatted with the American Insurance Institute, has consulted with college officials to develop the program.

County Plan Unit Continues Segoe Contract

Will Be Effective Until Next July

The Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission last night decided to continue its contract with Ladislas Segoe and Associates, planning consultants for the county since August 26, 1960, when Julian Tarrant of Richmond, Va. was retained as representative of the firm.

The contract, which was signed last night, will be in effect until at least July 1 next year and the fee for Mr. Tarrant's services will be $10,000.

Deductions Likely

However, it was pointed out at the meeting that any work that C. Lee Renaud, county planning director, does in connection with stipulations of the contract will be deducted from the consultant's fee.

The program, as originally set up, called for the expenditure of $40,000 over a period of from two and a half to three years, during which time a comprehensive master plan and zoning ordinance would be completed for the county.

One spokesman said that approximately 40 per cent of the work has been completed including most of the work on a major road plan, expressway integration and a traffic study.

Included in the contract inked last night are compiling data on such phases as recommended highway and road cross sections, railroad grade crossings, airfields and airports, plan of school facilities and recreation areas and subdivision regulations.

Belt Motion

The motion for renewal of the existing contract was made by Carl O. Belt and seconded by Ralph M. Race, both of whom stipulated the contract be carried out in accordance with terms as set up in the original plan.
